

SEN. ROBINSON TURNS LASING ATTACK ON AL SMITH IN REPLY TO DEAL CRITICISM BY 'HAPPY WARRIOR'

Gov. Oscar Allen Passes Suddenly; Noe Takes Office

Thousands in Louisiana Mourn Passing of Leader of Huey Long Forces;
Body To Lie in State in Rotunda of Capitol.

OFFICIALS GATHER IN BATON ROUGE

All Public Offices Are Ordered Closed Until After Funeral; Hemorrhage Is Cause of Death.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Governor Oscar Kelly Allen, who rose to power with Huey P. Long and inherited the political leadership left by the late senator, died today of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Apparently in excellent health and spirits, the 55-year-old Governor and senator-designate to fill the unexpired term of Long, was stricken suddenly as he prepared to leave the executive mansion for his offices in Louisiana's skyscraper statehouse.

He died within an hour, surrounded by his wife and two of his children.

The news spread quickly, shocking the state with the knowledge that the second of the two men who helped build a political empire without comparison in American history had passed.

Body to Lie in State.
In a huge bronze and copper casket, similar to the one especially ordered for the late Senator Huey P. Long, the body of Governor Allen was transported at 9:30 o'clock tonight from a funeral home to the statehouse along the same route over which Long's bier was borne.

It was placed in the great hall of the capitol as was Long's, and a guard of honor similarly posted.

Tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. the public will be permitted to file past the casket, and streams of people will pay final respect to the dead chief executive until 9 p. m., after which the body will be placed aboard train for Winfield, La., where it will be interred.

Throng of state officials, and personal friends of the deceased governor poured into Baton Rouge, filling hotels to overflowing. Many are expected to accompany the body to Winfield.

In Center of Tempest.
Like his late ally, Allen often was the center of political tempest. Only last week, he figured largely in sweeping into office a new state administration in a landslide victory followed by Long declared a "vindication" of his policies.

Allen's death automatically made Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe, of Monroe, a high lieutenant in the Long-Allen political organization, the chief executive, but again left vacant the United States senate seat Long occupied before he was slain.

State officials and private citizens who enjoyed the Governor's friendship and political confidence rushed to the executive mansion from over the state.

With tear-stained eyes, Judge Richard W. Leche, of New Orleans, the Long-Allen administration choice for Governor to succeed Governor Allen, arrived at the mansion almost speechless.

He campaigned alongside Allen in the recent democratic primary campaign as a "Huey Long man," won the office by a landslide vote and is now expected to take office.

TALMADGE FORCES TO CONVEY TODAY

Insurgent "Grass Roots"
Convention Will Meet in Macon Auditorium.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Insurgent southern democrats converged upon Macon tonight for a "grass roots" manifestation against the New Deal with interest centered upon the tentative candidacy of Governor Talmadge for the presidency.

Whether he will be named officially to oppose Franklin D. Roosevelt in primaries of the south was the question. His endorsement was freely given.

John Henry Kirby, Houston lumberman and co-sponsor with Talmadge of the meeting, declared that, unless a champion of the principles is chosen, "the fight is lost to start with."

The primary purpose of the meeting in Macon's million dollar auditorium, Kirby said, is to crystallize anti-Roosevelt sentiment. He said he and the Governor were in harmony.

Talmadge in Atlanta, declared flatly "it ain't so," to published reports, originating here, that he had formally declared for the presidential nomination.

"A man," Talmadge added, "doesn't announce for president like he does for sheriff, or something like that. It's a matter for conventions to handle."

"I'm going to the Philadelphia national convention," the black-haired Governor said, before departure for this city, "and a convention, as I said, is the place where folks decide who is a candidate for president."

"I don't think they will name any candidate at Macon."

The discussion grew out of Talmadge's recent declaration in Washington that he would be a candidate in opposition to Roosevelt if the Georgia democratic executive committee, which he controls, should order a state presidential preferential primary.

The committee has not yet acted. Expect 10,000.

WALLACE TERMS AAA TAX RULING LEGALIZED THEFT

Demands From Farm
Belt Force Committee
Decision To Take Up
Bill Today for Action.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Demands from the farm belt for action impelled the senate agriculture committee today to decide definite steps should be taken tomorrow to repair farm relief machinery thrown out of gear by the outlawing of AAA.

While many committee members were reported still doubtful whether the administration plan to subsidize farmers through an amendment to the soil conservation act would square with the supreme court, they were described "off hand" by Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, as ready to support the proposal nevertheless.

He reported receipt by members of "hundreds" of communications pleading for legislation.

The search for an AAA replacement formula was punctuated with a caustic side asserion by Secretary Wallace that the high tribunal's decision refunding $200,000,000 to processors "is probably the greatest legalized steal in American history."

A short time later, President Roosevelt informed his press conference that whether new taxation shall be sought to finance a new farm-aid plan is still under study, with no prospect of an immediate decision. Last week, Attorney-General Cummings said new tax legislation was "in process" of formation by the Treasury and Justice Department.

Wallace declared that "in the House-Mills case the supreme court disapproved the idea that the government could take money from one group for the benefit of another. Let it turn over to the processors this $200,000,000 which came from all the people we are seeing the most flagrant example of expropriation for the benefit of one small group."

Earlier Wallace was in a chuckling mood as he told reporters after a session with the senate committee that "I think the majority of the committee is in charge of the kitchen and the new farm bill is constitutional. But constitutionality means one thing—passing the supreme court another."

BORAH ADVOCATES 'LIVING PLATFORM'

Old Age Pension Urged;
Present Neutrality Policy
Assailed by Idahoan.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah tonight assailed "back-room" tactics in determining the republican presidential nominee for 1936 and asserted that only a "living platform" could assure republican victory next fall.

Touching upon the Townsend plan, Borah flatly asserted he did not believe it practical, although he said he has long believed in a federal pension plan assuring aged persons between $50 and $80 a month.

"I have not changed my belief that it is unconstitutional," Borah replied.

King George Rests Beside Parents In Vaults Beneath Castle Chapel

Simple Services Mark Funeral of Beloved Monarch of Great Britain; Five Foreign Crowned Heads Attend Rites.

WINDSOR, Eng., Jan. 28.—(AP)—In the nave. Slowly the king and the queen mother, walked away. Five foreign kings, the president of France, and a host of princes and notable commoners bowed their heads before the bier. Among them was Norman H. Davis, chief representative of President Roosevelt and the people of the United States.

They walked in two processions, from Westminster Hall, London, to Paddington station and again from the station here to the chapel.

Millions of George's subjects gave him a tremendous farewell, and because the cortege could not get through the crowds in London the funeral schedule was thrown 38 minutes behind.

Hundreds of persons fainted or were injured, and the St. John's ambulance brigade announced nearly 10,000 cases had been attended in London during the procession, 3,000 more than in last year's jubilee processions. One person died.

Police were forced to take drastic action to clear the roadway, and angry shouts went up from thousands at Hyde Park when police rode among them and forced them back to side streets.

The body was brought from this

STURDIVANT TRIAL IS NOW EXPECTED

Weight of Testimony in Auto Return Brings
Shift in Probe Trend.

Trials of Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant on charges that he released or caused to be released illegally three impounded automobiles to Ralph Owens was predicted freely yesterday in city hall circles as the aftermath of revelations of Monday night's police committee probe of police affairs.

Although committee members declined to commit themselves regarding a probable future policy, it was clear they were impressed by the testimony of witnesses that Sturdivant ordered the release of at least one car even after it had been called to his attention that it was held on a liquor transportation complaint.

Thirteen additional officers yesterday were summoned to appear at the third session of the committee at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the city hall. They will be called upon to answer various questions, including charges that policemen participated in poker and dice games at the police station "on the nights of November 28-29."

Each Summed.
William R. Echols, inspector of weights and measures, was to tell of the alleged gambling games. He was to be followed by a continuous probe of the release of the liquor cars to George Owens, alleged bootlegger. Patrolman S. B. McGarrity and Wallace will be asked why they were shifted from their assignments after testifying before the grand jury. Radio Patrolman C. P. Wright and O. W. Allen also were summoned to relate incidents relating to their transfer from one first to another. Hospital Patrolman J. J.

Georgia Veterans' Bonus Blanks To Be Mailed From State Bureau

Application blanks for bonus payments to Georgia veterans will be mailed soon to various veteran organizations over the state, John M. Slaton, Jr., manager of the Veterans' Bureau, said yesterday.

Prints of all veterans applying for the bonus will be mailed in Washington and the state's supply should reach here within a few days.

The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Red Cross and various other former soldier organizations will handle applications in various communities, he said.

Mr. Slaton said the application blanks are being printed now as the law as passed specifies payments can be made only on or after June 15, Slaton said.

Veterans desiring to do so may make application from the bureau and receive their forms direct, Slaton said.

Fingerprints of applicants will be made at the state capitol here Wednesday morning.

Prints of all veterans applying for the bonus will be matched against those on file in Washington.

DICK LOEB, KILLER, SLASHED TO DEATH IN FIGHT AT PRISON

Partner of Nathan Leopold
in Famous Franks
Case Dies After Prisoner
Attacks Him With Razor

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Slashed 52 times by a razor in the hands of an enraged fellow convict, Richard Loeb, 30, co-perpetrator of the "thrill slaying" of Bobby Franks in 1924, was killed today in Stateville penitentiary.

James Day, 28, serving a term for larceny, confessed the killing of Loeb, State's Attorney Will McCabe, of Will county said, and blamed it to Loeb's persistence in pursuing him over a long period with improper advances.

Sullen at first, Day refused to discuss the case except to tell Warden Joseph Ragen it was "just a fight."

But later, to Edward G. Powers, investigator for the state's attorney's office, he gave a full statement of the furious fight he said he and Loeb engaged in, and the incidents, which he said, led to it.

Denies Stealing Razor.
He denied he had stolen the razor with which he "cut to pieces" the partner of Nathan Leopold in Chicago's most revolting crime of nearly a dozen years ago.

The razor, he claimed, he wrested from Loeb's hand when Loeb threatened him with it.

"Ever since I have been a prisoner here," said Day's statement to Powers, "Loeb has been hounding me, trying to get me to submit to him. I always refused."

"I had words with him Friday. This morning I was passing Loeb's cell and he said, 'I stopped and spoke to Loeb. I wanted to settle with him.'"

"Loeb told me that he was going to his private bathroom after dinner this noon and would see me in the cell."

"I went to the room and waited five minutes. Loeb came in and undressed and then told me to undress. He had a razor. As I was going into the shower I hit him rather roughly and knocked him down. I fell on top of him and the razor fell out of his hand."

"I Finished Him."
"While we were wrestling, Loeb got the razor and took a couple of swipes at me. I managed to get the razor away from him and cut him

WHITE PARK PROBE BY JURY EXPECTED

Mayor Key's Actions Are Questioned as Jurors
Discuss Novel Situation

Probability of a grand jury investigation of the John A. White park deal, with Mayor Key as the principal witness, loomed yesterday as the councilman after whom the park was named demanded that the whole transaction be probed.

At the same time, it was known that grand jurors discussed the situation yesterday in the grand jury room and that the talk centered about a question directed to Mayor Key.

The question, "Why did Mayor Key allow the city to spend $141,000 in improvements on the park when he knew that 86 acres of the land did not belong to the city?" was expressed.

Connie White, in a letter to Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, demanded that Key be summoned by the grand jury as a witness to tell what he knew about the affair where by the city lost the improvements at the park when land rented from Dr. O. E. Cullum reverted to the owner at the expiration of the lease December 31.

White suggested also that Cullum be called before the grand jury.

Foreman J. T. Upchurch said the grand jury will investigate "matters which are brought up by special request" and it was understood that Boykin will carry the letter from White to the grand jury when he receives it. He said yesterday he had not received the letter.

The current grand jury recommended a week ago that the Cullum land be purchased to salvage the improvements made by the city and to provide the West End section with a recreational center. Mayor Key replied that he would "see Dr. Cullum 300 miles deep in hell" before he would pay the price of $50,000 which Dr. Cullum asks for his 86 acres, on which lie five of the nine golf holes and the $14,000 clubhouse.

Foe of Roosevelt Termed Turncoat; Record Is Recalled

Atlanta Pilot Is Killed

LIEUTENANT W. K. PAYNE.

ATLANTAN KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Lieutenant W. K. Payne
Victim of Smashup in Landing at Washington

Lieutenant William K. Payne, army flier of Atlanta, was instantly killed yesterday when the plane he was piloting crashed while attempting to land at Bolling Field, Washington, District of Columbia.

A passenger in the army plane, Lieutenant Dudley E. Whitten, of Wharton, Texas, was fatally injured in the crash, dying a few moments later.

Lieutenant Payne attended Tech High school in Atlanta, and studied at Georgia Tech for two years before entering the army service at Kelly Field. He finished his training at Kelly Field as a second lieutenant and was transferred to Pope Field, at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The plane in which the two fliers were killed took off from Pope field yesterday morning in a flight to Bolling field. A gust of wind which sent their plane out of control at the Washington landing field was believed to have caused the crash, but officers declined an opinion pending further investigation.

Both men were attached to the 10th observation squadron, army air corps. Relatives of Lieutenant Payne said he had visited his Atlanta home only three times since going into army service. His last visit occurred shortly before Christmas, when his squadron was delayed at Chandler field because of bad weather during flight maneuvers.

Recently Married.
The Atlanta flier was 26 years old and had recently married. His relatives said, his wife having accompanied him to his station at Pope Field.

Besides his wife, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. L. K. Payne, and two brothers, E. T. Payne and E. L. Payne, all of Atlanta.

The body will be brought to Atlanta under military escort and burial will be held with military honors. Arrangements will be announced.

Text of Robinson's Address

By EDWARD J. DUFFY.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The New Deal officially portrayed Alfred E. Smith tonight as a turncoat "warring against his own people and against the men and women with whom he fought shoulder to shoulder in the past."

The spokesman, in reply to the Saturday speech impugning the Americanism and integrity of Roosevelt policies, was Smith's running-mate in the 1928 campaign for the presidency—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas.

He said "the hour long harangue before the miscalled Liberty League was barren and sterile, without a single constructive suggestion."

"Governor Smith," he concluded a national broadcast, "I've read you the record."

"You approved of NRA, you approved farm relief, you urged federal spending for public works, you urged congress to cut red tape and confer power on the executive, you urged automatic power for the president, and you exposed with merciless logic the false cry of communism and socialism."

"The New Deal was the platform of the 'Happy Warrior'."

The policies of the Liberty League have become the platform of the 'Unhappy Warrior'."

"Thrown in Wastebasket."
Smith had contended that the 1932 platform, save for stock exchange control and repeal of prohibition, was "thrown in the wastebasket" by the administration.

Robinson did not undertake a detailed reply to this, saying only: "He wanted to read the democratic platform but for some strange reason he never finished it. I wonder why? Was there something further along, condemning stock market manipulations, that he didn't like to read before his wealthy friends?"

In charging that the New Deal fostered an unconstitutional arm program, the senator said Smith "forgets that in 1928 he advocated the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill which in many respects was far more drastic in use of the taxing power than AAA ever was."

"That's just a case of second-guessing," Robinson continued. "Let me quote you from his Jefferson Day speech on April 13, 1932. He said: 'It is a perfectly easy thing to say we must restore the purchasing power of the farmer. Fine! Of course we must. But how are we going to do it? I would sooner have a short 'shake hands' with the fellow that knows how to do it than listen for a week to the fellow who knows how to tell you what the trouble is.'"

"Well, Governor Smith, you should have stepped out of that Liberty

Cobb Says: Texans Are Different

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1935, by North American Newsman Alliance, Inc.)
HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 28.—There's something about Texans—something different.
The men who tramped the Oregon trail were homesteaders. They took their wives with them, and plows and seed-corn. The forty-niners who went to California had shovels on their shoulders and—if you can believe the Suihannah song—"banjos on their knees. But if it came to a pinch they threw away the banjos first. Because they were looking for gold. But in the beginning those who came to Texas carried rifles and kept their eyes peeled. They were looking for trouble. And, law, how abundantly they found it.
For nobody dreamed then of the incredibly rich and fertile empire this would be. The only prospect was for a fight against wilderness, climate, desolation, against red savages and white men more savage than the red.
The heritage lives on: Texans still take a chance. A native way laid me today. First he offered to bet a cool million Mr. Hoover would be nominated. Then he tried to borrow twenty. Both of us came out even. He saved his million. I kept my twenty.
But the spirit of the true adventurer was there. You've got to admit that.

Text of Sen. Robinson's Address Replying to Smith's Criticism

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The text of the reply by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, tonight to the recent Liberty League address by Alfred E. Smith:

Ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience: I shall take for my text tonight Genesis, the 27th chapter, Verse 22: "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau." Alfred E. Smith sought the presidency in 1928 when a man who raised his voice on behalf of the great causes of social justice and democratic principles was regarded by the stock tickler patriots with smug toleration or as a potential enemy of his country.

Governor Smith in 1928 waged a clean and honorable campaign in behalf of common men and women, but he was swept down to defeat by greed and privilege hiding behind a murky and malodorous smoke screen. Greed supplied the 30 pieces of silver and passion brought about the base betrayal of fundamental American principles.

LIBERTY LEAGUE

DINNER SPEAKER

A few nights ago there was held in the city of Washington a banquet by the miscellany "American Liberty League" and the main attraction of that occasion was none other than our old friend, the "Happy Warrior" who won his spurs battling for the rights of the plain people.

Let me read to you a description of that occasion from a Washington newspaper: "Jammed elbow to elbow, tailcoat to tailcoat, fluttering bouffant dress to sleek black velvet dress, the tables set so closely together in the main ballroom that the ushers in the Confederate gray mess coats and black pants scarcely could wiggle between the anti-New Dealers, democrats and republicans alike gathered to hear the magic rasping voice of Alfred E. Smith belabor the present administration."

Another writer in the same paper described it as a billion-dollar audience that glanced up with eyes of worship and love at the new champion who had come amongst them. It was the swiftest party ever given by the du Ponts.

Yes, Governor Smith not only has changed sides in the great battle but his whole outlook seems to have undergone a transformation. He has forgotten apparently the issues upon which he ran for the presidency. The brown derby has been discarded for the high hat; he has turned away from the east side with those little shops and fish markets, and now his gaze rests lovingly upon the gilded towers and palaces of Park Avenue.

NOW WHAT A CHANGE IN AMERICAN CRITIC!

In the old days, Governor Smith was one of the most constructive and penetrating critics in American public life. But now what a change; his hour-long harangue before the miscellany Liberty League was barren and sterile without a single constructive suggestion to change the fundamental economic problems confronting this government. He laid down a six-point program in which he proposed that the government should take over the production of food and clothing, that it should take over the production of power, that it should take over the production of transportation, that it should take over the production of communication, that it should take over the production of education, and that it should take over the production of the human element.

Why the "Happy Warrior" even went further than that. He boldly asserted that our great offensive to overcome the depression and adjust the nation's economic life had accomplished nothing and brought us nowhere. Is that a serious declaration or does it come under the heading of oratorical license? I challenge the accuracy of that assertion. Why, a table recently compiled shows that in the three years of the New Deal as compared to the last three years of the old deal, unemployment has declined 30 per cent, cotton, wheat and other crops have increased 100 per cent or more in value, industrial production has gone up 51 per cent, listed stocks have increased 134 per cent in value and listed bonds 22 per cent.

DAILY PRESS REVEALS STORY OF PROGRESS

The progress of our recovery is apparent to every man who looks about him and the story of its onward march fairly leaps at you every day from the pages of the daily press. Bear in mind that when the Roosevelt administration came into power hungry and abandoned men in the cities were searching the garbage pails for waste scraps and the American farmers were hauling court foreclosures in physical force—which borders little short of revolution. And Governor Smith says there has been no progress.

President Roosevelt had not been in the White House 24 hours before bankers and other big businessmen now grouped in the Liberty League appealed to him to "do something," to "do anything," to relieve the paralysis of business and to save them.

The President and the congress responded to their appeals, saved the banks and in saving them also saved the insurance companies; saved the railroads, the farms and the homes. No sooner had these supplicants been made secure, than they began to complain of the very processes by which their fortunes had been preserved against bankruptcy. They did not want the needed help broad government aid to private enterprises as socialistic or communistic; nor did they complain of the government's engaging in what is normally private enterprise. Now, being secure, they regard it as violative of sound principle to accord the same assistance to others which they themselves have enjoyed.

DIDN'T FINISH READING PLATFORM OF 1932

So much for what the Roosevelt administration. You recall that before the New Deal, Governor Smith's criticism of the present democratic administration. You recalled that before the Liberty League, he started to read the democratic platform of 1932 but for some strange reason he never finished it. I wonder why? Was there something further along, condemning stock market manipulations that he didn't like to read before his wealthy friends?

In any event, he charged that the New Deal was fostering and promoting class hatred; second that it enacted an unconstitutional farm program and an unconstitutional NRA; third, that public money was being wasted; fourth, that Congress had abdicated its powers to the executive; and fifth, in a flag-waving, soul-stirring crescendo he charged that the New Deal was trying to undermine the constitution and supreme court while it fastened a socialistic and communistic dictatorship upon this country.

Let us look at the record. Why, Governor Smith, from your own lips, with your own words, with your own matches talent for illuminating the dark places of public discussion, I shall prove that you have devoted and championed every basic principle that has been written into law by the Roosevelt administration.

ADDRESS AT HARVARD RECALLED TO SMITH

In his speech on Saturday night, Mr. Smith made the ugly charge that the New Deal is fostering class hatred. Let me read you what he said when he was addressing the alumni association of Harvard University on June 22, 1933:

"I remember when we first spoke about the workmen's compensation act at the court of appeals of our own state set aside the first enactment as being contrary to the constitution. I remember when we enacted the child welfare act it was referred to as paternalism and as socialism."

"Our whole democracy at that time seemed to be devoted to the part that constitutional law and statute law was intended only for the protection of property and of money, and the human element did not seem to enter into it."

"The same has to do with the factor code; the same has to do with the provision for modern, up-to-date housing for our small-income group; the same has to do with the development of state-owned water power and the ownership by the state of the power at the site. Twenty years ago those were regarded as socialistic. I was referred to many times by the press as a socialist. But, in the light of our present-day legislation, Mr. President, I claim I am one of the ultra-conservatives."

NOTHING TO FEAR FROM DICTATORSHIP

"We have nothing to fear in this country from dictatorship. There can be nothing of that kind in this country. It cannot live here. We are not organized to carry it on. We have no desire for it. Great as may be the grant of temporary power in an emergency that congress may by congressional enactment put into the hands of a president the thing we have to fear in this country, to my way of thinking, is the influence of the organized minorities, because somehow or other the great majority does not seem to organize itself."

Yes, those were Mr. Smith's own words. Somehow I think there must be two Al Smiths. One is the happy, carefree fellow behind whom we marched and shouted in 1928, proud of his principles and eager to place him in the White House. Now we have the other Al Smith, this grim-visaged fellow in the high hat and tails, who warns us that we are going straight to Moscow. If I recall correctly, he was the chief of the senate finance committee in 1933 and urged us to recognize soviet Russia and give it a five-year moratorium on debt payments.

Throughout the 1928 campaign Governor Smith hammered at the power trust, denounced greed and social privilege, and faithfully promised the people that he would establish a new order of things and bring about what he called a "more equal distribution of prosperity." Now he talks about stirring up class hatred but what he said then sounded a great deal more like "share the wealth" than it does like the comparatively mild statements of President Roosevelt.

HOUSING DRASTIC

I pointed out to his next accusation. He charged the New Deal with fostering an unconstitutional farm relief program. He forgets that in 1932 he advocated the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, which in many respects was far more drastic in its use of the taxing power than the AAA ever was. That's just a case of second-guessing. Let me quote you from his Jefferson Day speech on April 13, 1932. He said: "It is a perfectly easy thing to say we must restore the purchasing power of the farmer. Fine! Of course we must. But how are we going to do it? I would sooner have a bank that would issue money than one that would tell you what the trouble is."

Well, Governor Smith, you should have stepped out of that Liberty League banquet and gone four blocks to the White House to shake the hand of the man who raised the purchasing power of the farmers more than $2,000,000,000 in one year. In his speech on Saturday night, Mr. Smith denounced the NRA as a giant octopus that entangled itself around the business of the small man and tried to strangle it to death. Another second guess. He made a radio speech on August 22, 1933, in which he called the NRA "a giant octopus that entangled itself around the business of the small man and tried to strangle it to death."

FALLS BACK ON OWN BLANK

"The slight reflection on these facts should dispose of the claim, from whatever source it came, that the National Industrial Recovery Act was unconstitutional. It is a fact that the constitution, or marks revelation in our government and in the conduct of our everyday life."

"Let us see whether, by shorter hours, higher wages and increased employment, we can avoid the dole, called home relief, and the disguised dole popularly known as relief work. The consequences of which we all know. It is infinitely better to pay the bill by the methods proposed in the National Industrial Recovery Act than to have the consequences of which we all know."

These words of Governor Smith constitute an affidavit of his own mouth of the act he so bitterly condemned last Saturday night. The next charge was that public money was being wasted and that the party had failed to fulfill its pledge of a 25 per cent reduction in government expenditures. He neglected entirely to state that no President ever had reduced the cost of government, the evil consequences of which we all know. It is infinitely better to pay the bill by the methods proposed in the National Industrial Recovery Act than to have the consequences of which we all know."

GOVERNOR SMITH'S POSITION ON RELIEF APPROPRIATIONS

I'll go further than that. Governor Smith himself was urging appropriations for public relief, at the very time that the public works bill, which he boasts so loudly was being drafted. He made speech after speech urging a public bond issue to provide employment. He appeared before a committee of congress for that purpose. Here is what he said at the Jackson Day dinner in Washington on June 8, 1933:

"Now if it is all right to put the credit of the government behind business, let the credit of the government be used to keep the wolf of hunger from the door of millions of people."

In that same speech Mr. Smith declared that the conduct of the Hoover administration was "defensive" because states, cities and private charities were out of funds and unable to cope with the relief situation. He forgot to mention that speech to his Liberty League friends. Once again he was second-guessing that congress has abdicated its legislative power as he said, "the country is now running by bureaucrats. Why, what congress did is the very thing he advocated. In that Jackson Day speech from which I just quoted, Smith said:

AL SMITH IS QUOTED ON RELIEF SUGGESTIONS

"I would therefore suggest that congress should appoint a federal administrator of public works and put the President in such a position as he can do his job. He should have the power to cut, slash, dig into, and run through all the red tape, and through all the statutory restrictions that are placed upon the government in the progress of public works."

"In other words, invoke the tactics of war, instead of dotting all the i's and crossing all the t's and going through all the cumbersome labor peace-time performance when it comes to public works construction."

Oh, my, Governor Smith, what a short memory you have. You charged that the Roosevelt administration is fostering socialism and communism is so ridiculous, it's actually funny. Honestly, Governor, I think you've been seeing things under the bed. You know those communist spies that our good friend Ham Fish is always talking about. Where have I heard that charge before? It sounds so familiar. Before? Oh, now I recall. That's the identical charge that Herbert Hoover made against you in 1928.

SAID OLD CRY IS RAISED AGAIN

Remember, Governor, after you fearlessly advocated the public ownership of the coal mines and public development of water power sites. Poor old Herbert whimpered that it was state socialism because he lacked any democracy or social responsibility to the position you took. And you nailed poor Herbert on that one. You reminded him that the same old cry had been raised against Theodore

Robinson Writing Speech Branding Smith 'Turncoat'

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, running mate of Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 campaign for the presidency, is shown above preparing the speech he delivered last night in which the New Dealer officially portrayed Smith as a "turncoat" warring against his own people and against the men and women with whom he fought shoulder to shoulder in the past. Senator Robinson's speech was a reply to the speech made by Smith Saturday in which he impugned the Americanism and integrity of Roosevelt policies. AP photo.

The people of New York are tired of the stock argument, have discovered it means nothing, that it is simply subterfuge and camouflage, and I am satisfied that the people of the nation in their wisdom will so prize it."

Yes, Governor Smith, you very properly reminded Mr. Hoover that under his definition even Charles Evans Hughes, the present chief justice of the United States, was a socialist. Officers of the Liberty League addressed Governor Smith. I want to comment on one more portion of your speech. You quoted from President Roosevelt's message to congress and then by straining words distorted his meaning. You charged the President with saying "If you are going to have an autocrat, take me; be very careful about the other fellow." Now, the chief justice said that, and he never hinted at any such thing. That looks just a little bit like a blow below the belt. Now suppose you had said that, "I am not going to read you verbatim a news dispatch which appeared in the usually reliable New York Times, in the issue of February 8, 1933, just before Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House."

Governor Alfred E. Smith told 400 guests at a dinner of the Catholic conference on industrial problems at the Hotel Astor last night that the nation needs a dictatorship. He said that he would cut through red tape if appropriations of public funds are to count in the war against the depression. The economic governor asserted that the economic crisis had caused more domestic damage than participation by the United States in the World War, and he declared it must be a democracy that would win the fight, by arrogating to itself the powers of a tyrant, a despot or a monarch.

ON SHELVE AND FORGOTTEN

"Let us look back a few years to 1917 and 1918," Mr. Smith proposed. "What did we do then? Why we constituted a dictatorship wrapped it up and put it on the shelf and forgot it until it was over." Just think of that! Alfred E. Smith proposed in 1933 that we wrap up the constitution and put it on the shelf until the depression was defeated and then coming down here in 1936 to lecture democratic leaders on constitutional government.

Now let me say something about the constitution. In the whole United States, there is not a single individual who can honestly and truthfully charge Franklin D. Roosevelt with advocating the suppression of freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of assembly, freedom of worship or of these other basic rights guaranteed us in the immortal Bill of Rights.

The idea that Governor Smith wished to convey in 1933 is the idea we all had when that in 1933, stress and torment, when every moment demanded action to preserve human life and prevent human suffering, that we should be engaged in wasteful quibbling. He meant the time had passed for legal hair-splitting and pompous phrasology.

OF 'AUTHORITIES'

Governor Smith meant he was tired of boreome self-styled constitutional authorities like James M. Beck, the chief justice of the "Liberty League," who has appeared 10 times before the supreme court on constitutional questions and been turned down eight times.

History will show and the record now will show that President Roosevelt has never advocated the adoption of a single measure designed to curb in any way the liberties of any man.

Of course President Roosevelt was unable to say definitely and finally in the great emergency of 1933 "at where state power ended and federal power began. Of course congress was unable to say flatly and finally that the measures adopted would come within the framework of the constitution as interpreted by the supreme court. Who could say conclusively the A.A. was constitutional or unconstitutional? Why even the court itself differed on that issue and three of its keenest members gave their unqualified opinion that it was constitutional.

We anticipate unprincipled men, engaged only in promoting their own interests, to join the hypocritical and pharisaical chorus to join the hue and cry of those who falsely accuse the President of the United States of trying to undermine the organic law of this country. But we don't expect it from high-minded individuals who know better, from men who themselves have advocated far more drastic policies and programs than Mr. Roosevelt has pursued. TWO SHIP'S OFFICERS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES

Morro Castle Pilot Gets Two Years; Company Fined $10,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Federal Judge Murray Hubert today sentenced Eban S. Abbott, chief engineer of the liner Morro Castle, to four years in prison and William F. Warm, acting captain, to two years. They were convicted of criminal negligence in connection with the burning of the ship September 8, 1934, with a loss of 124 lives.

Henry B. Cabaud, executive vice president of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, operators of the vessel, was given a suspended sentence of one year, and fined $5,000. He was paroled pending payment of the fine.

The company was fined the maximum of $10,000. Judge Hubert vigorously criticized all the defendants.

"My regret," he said as the men stood before him for sentence, "is so far as the defendant corporation is concerned that the statute provides only the limited sentence it does."

The judge's lengthy commentary accompanying the sentencing remarked that the mercantile marine as a whole on disciplinary grounds.

Particularly did he score the maneuvering of the ship into the wind in such a fashion as to sweep the after decks with flame, as passengers huddled there trying to gain the lifeboats.

Judge Hubert remarked it was the first time a steamship corporation and an executive officer of a steamship corporation had been sentenced in a sea disaster.

He criticized the failure of the crew to engage in regular safety drills and for its abandonment of the ship. Regarding Abbott, he said: "Abbott testified that the first he knew of the fire was at the time of the alarm. He said he immediately dispatched two assistants to the engine room to take charge. Then he went back to his quarters to perform his duties or something. He remained there from two to five minutes."

The judge then directed a charge of "gross negligence" against "Abbott testified," he said, "he was in such a condition that he was unable to perform his duties in the lifeboat. The jury didn't believe that. Neither did I."

harbor the principal liberal strength and that this action was "quite unlikely to follow Smith. It was his view that the issue is liberalism versus reaction."

"The republican party," he said, "will be the party of reaction and necessarily more liberals will support the President."

His remarks were made in press conference; those by Lewis to a minority meeting and in his annual report. Advocating organization for "solution of our political as well as economic problems" in his report, Lewis besought "the prayers of countless thousands of miners to sustain the President."

There was nothing for Americans to be proud of, he told the meeting, in seeing Smith "raise himself to a gibbering political jackpots before an audience like that which assembled at the billion-dollar dinner."

BUREAU WILL HANDLE BONUS APPLICATIONS

The whole tax situation to determine whether new levies are necessary. He placed a final decision far in the future. Observers were quick to note that with the actual cash drain of the bonus not reaching the treasury until July 1, financial estimates for the current fiscal year ending June 30 will not be affected materially by the payments to the veterans. Even as he spoke the vast machinery for payment was in gear. From the veterans' bureau, 3,000,000 bonus application blanks were mailed to its 50 regional offices, and another 1,000,000 were scheduled to go tomorrow, creating a minor postal problem, soon to be magnified, officials said, into one that may require wartime measures.

At the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, draftsmen were preparing designs for the baby bonds. From one veteran's organization—the Disabled American Veterans—there came today a denial that it proposes a drive for veterans' pensions, now that the bonus battle has been won.

"I can say most emphatically," said M. A. Harlan, national commander, "that as long as I am commander, the Disabled American Veterans will have no part in any such general pension movement."

"Furthermore, whatever influence I may exert in our organization in the future will be used to combat any such agitation looking toward enactment of a general pension law, and I feel that this organization will ever be mindful of its obligation to the wartime disabled and their dependents."

PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT CIVITAN DINNER

Crowover Stresses Obligations of Members; Thomas Lusk Is Guest.

Stressing the obligations of Civitans to themselves, their families and their communities, Judge Arthur Crowover, of Nashville, Tenn., international president of Civitans, was principal speaker and honor guest at a dinner meeting of Civitans of Atlanta and the surrounding area.

W. Earl Quillian, of the Atlanta club, introduced the speaker and Herbert Porter, international treasurer, responded to the address with a short talk. Thomas R. Luck, of Carrollton, district governor, was a special guest at the meeting. LeRoy Wayne, president of the Atlanta club, presided at the dinner and directed arrangements for the international president's visit to Atlanta.

RICHARD LOEB SLAIN BY FELLOW CONVICT

several times. He hit me on the left cheek. Then I cut him some more. Then I finished him with a knife. "Loeb fell down in the shower with hot water running. I shut off the hot water and turned on the cold. Loeb got up and went out first. I picked up the razor and walked out. I gave the razor to an officer."

His account varied somewhat from that related by guards. They said he had screamed from the room and rushed in to find Day on top of Loeb.

The injured man was rushed to the prison hospital. Eight doctors labored to save him. Specialists were summoned from Michael Reese hospital in Chicago by his family. Blood transfusions were fruitfully attempted. He died at 3:05 p. m., about two hours after the attack.

Authorities at once began a searching investigation, participated in by W. J. Connelley, prison state official. Coroner E. A. Kingston ordered an inquest for tomorrow at 10 a. m. With Loeb when he died was his brother, Ernest. He survived, also by his mother, and brother, Allan. One of the last persons to see the dying prisoner was Nathan Leopold, serving like him, a life and a 90-year sentence for the same crime.

Leopold heard his college and crime associate murmur: "I think I'll make it." He seemed much affected by the grave condition of Richard. Loeb had deep gashes in the arms, the shoulders and abdomen, but the fatal rash seemed to be his jugular vein. He bled profusely as he was rushed to the hospital.

The call was issued for blood donors, and several convicts volunteered. A quart of blood from the hospital was injected into the dying man's veins, but it brought no rally. Several hypodermic stimulants were administered to prolong Loeb's life, but he sank rapidly until the end came.

The brilliant but perverted minds of Loeb and Leopold, which led them to attempt the "perfect crime," probably contributed to Loeb's violent death today.

Won Privileges. He had won, along with Leopold, the privilege of instruction in the prison correspondence school. It was in connection with this work he was thrown into propinquities with Day, generating the animosity which led to the fatal fight.

Loeb, nearly six feet tall and husky, ordinarily would have been more than a match for the slighter Leander from Chicago. But desperation, prison officials said, apparently gave Day strength to overpower his annoyance. Day, serving a 1-to-14-year term, will face a murder charge. Warden Ragon said a speedy grand jury action was prophesied by county officials.

The warden said the stabbing occurred in the officers' dining room, of which the shower is a part, and that both men were stripped when guards arrived.

He would not comment on Day's statement to Powers, but said he would "go to the bottom of this affair," and would question Leopold, since he was supervising the remodeling of the room, where the fight occurred, for use in the prison school.

U. S. CHAMBER URGES FEDERAL EXPENSE CUT

Body Also Demands Revision of Government's Relief, Taxing Policies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Wide sentiment for revision of the federal government's spending, taxing and relief policies was claimed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today after a poll of its member organizations.

Voting on 17 questions based on a committee report on federal finance, the chamber membership—local chambers and trade associations—called for a reduction in spending and a balanced budget without increased taxes. The membership also held that combined expenditures of federal, state and local governments demand so great a proportion of the total national income that they "discourage business, threaten the security of wages and savings, and retard employment."

Approval was given a proposal that relief expenditures be "provided by and under the control of the states" with "reimbursable advances" from the federal government only on application of states and cities unable to obtain funds.

By a vote of 1,688 1-2 to 22, the membership voted for discontinuance of "federal expenditures . . . for the purpose of developing or extending governmental activities which compete with private business."

The vote was 1,687 1-2 to 70 1-2 that it was contrary to "sound public policy" to use "federal taxing power primarily to compel citizens or individuals to conform to social or economic readjustments, with revenue only incidental."

TRIAL OF STURDIVANT REGARDED PROBABLE

Elliot and Motorcycle Officer J. L. Ellis were summoned, but did not know on what line they would be questioned.

In addition, Detectives Leo Nahlik and L. Harbin, of the vice squad, and Patrolman W. H. Rauschenberg were summoned.

W. S. (Yank) Venable, alleged pick-up man for bug racketeers, yesterday was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury for violation of the lottery laws as a result of Mayor Key's private investigation of lottery activities.

Virgil Smith, 617 Echo street; Luther Smith, 353 Pulliam street, and Patrolman Herbert Jenkins, Key's driver, were witnesses.

A statement by Mayor Key that "Sturdivant will have to stand on his own legs," yesterday was regarded as a decided shift in Key's attitude toward the chief. Previously, the mayor had defended him against charges that Sturdivant was elevated to the chief's post from a position in the detective bureau.

Evidence Requested. Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, yesterday reiterated an appeal to members of the November-December grand jury to provide the facts and the list of witnesses on which the grand jury predicated its sharp criticisms of police operations. Until now, Bridges asserted, the grand jury has guarded its secret although committee members have exhausted every facility to obtain the names of those needed for its investigation of the charges.

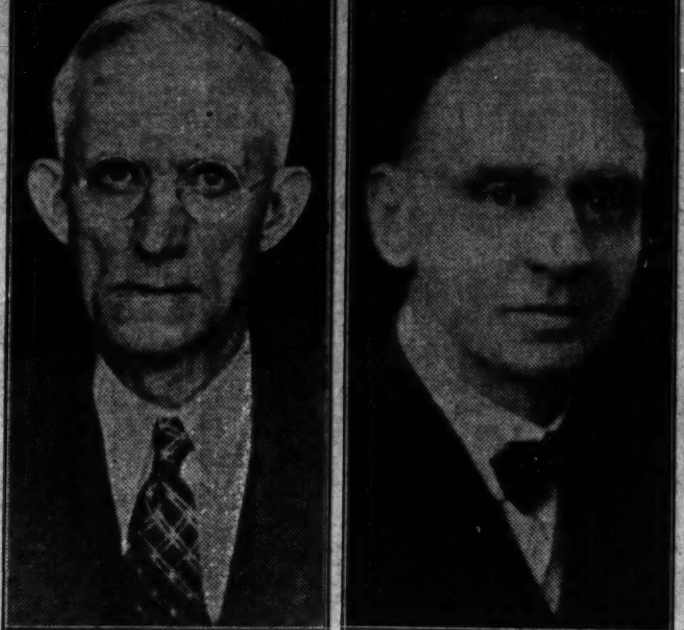

"This committee has nothing to fear in getting the truth of the charges as made by the grand jury, or the truth of any charges which may be made either by the grand jury or anyone else," Bridges said.

"What we want is the truth. That is what we have been trying to get. We are pledged to go as far as we possibly can in our investigation. Heretofore, we have been balked by lack of co-operation from the grand jury and citizens, who may have information which will enable us to get the facts. I wish to say emphatically that our committee will go to the very bottom of any charge, complaint, or rumor. All we want is a chance to do a good job. I am convinced I am speaking the sentiment of every member of this committee when I appeal again for co-operation."

Leopold and Loeb on May 21, 1924, planned the "perfect crime." They lured Bobby Franks, 14, the son of an acquaintance of their family, into an automobile while he was going home from school.

His body was found the following day in an isolated culvert near the Illinois-Indiana state line. It had been badly mutilated and the head had been battered and strangled.

Incumbents Announce Plans To Run Again

Atlanta Women's Clubs Re-enlist In Campaign for Traffic Safety

Realizing that Atlanta is facing the greatest havoc in its history in the form of fatal and maiming automobile accidents, the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday passed a resolution highly commending the Constitution for its determined fight against recklessness and pledging the support of every member of its 103 affiliated organizations.

The federation has previously passed a resolution praising the Constitution Safety Council's efforts to stop the annual toll of dead and injured from auto crashes in the city and state. The resolution yesterday was prompted by the continued and unrelenting fight of the Safety Council and by the fact that last year the number of fatalities in the city limits reached the high mark of 74, eclipsing the 65 deaths in 1934 by nine.

Already this year nine auto accident deaths have occurred within the city limits of Atlanta. The ninth death was recorded January 22.

At this rate, the city will suffer 150 accident deaths by the end of the present year.

This picture of the growing menace of horrible deaths certainly warrants the federation's resolution to take an active part in stopping the unnecessary bloodshed.

The Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs says in its resolution: "It is something must be done to reduce the terrible toll of death, injury and property damage that is a daily occurrence upon the highways of Georgia and the streets of Atlanta, and

"Whereas, 74 people were killed in traffic accidents within the city limits of Atlanta during 1935 and nine have met similar death in Atlanta in the brief weeks of 1936 to date, and

"Whereas, the Atlanta Constitution has for months conducted a daily campaign in its news and editorial columns, preaching the gospel of safe driving and reiterating those safety rules which, observed, would reduce traffic tragedies to a minimum; and

"Whereas, since the inauguration of this campaign by The Constitution newspaper in Atlanta and throughout the state have followed suit and joined with The Constitution in its efforts for greater traffic safety;

"Be it resolved: That we reaffirm our previous resolution commending the Atlanta Constitution for its great humanitarian effort and for its leadership which has induced other papers to follow and adopt similar campaigns.

"Be it also resolved that every member of the 103 organizations represented here at once enlist in The Constitution's campaign for safe driving by signing one of the 'Safe Driving' pledges which are published daily in its columns; and by preaching the gospel of safety by constant teaching of the seven simple rules embodied in that pledge.

"Adopted by the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs in regular board meeting, Tuesday, January 28, 1936."

The resolution was presented by Mrs. R. Murdoch Walker, Mrs. John K. Otley and Mrs. Norman Sharp. It was signed by members of the federation's resolution committee, including Mrs. William L. Percy, chairman; Mrs. Charles J. Haden, Mrs. T. F. Boykin, Mrs. E. V. Carter, Mrs. E. Melton and Mrs. George Ripley, president of the federation and ex-officio member of the resolution committee.

A more appropriate time for the women's club members and the public at large to become pledged safe drivers could not be found, with Atlanta starting out on a year which threatens to become the most horrible in the records of the city's automobile accidents.

The correct traffic signals, shown in the above drawings, are no small part of the safe driver's rules of the road. Not all the red faces you see are caused from a recent trip to Florida. Any irate motorist who has had to make his car do tricks it is not supposed to do in order to avoid hitting one of those thoughtless and discourteous persons who neglect to use the signals can quite spontaneously deliver imprecations which will

LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP BLOCKS TRADE TREATY

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Italian mission seeking an Italian-Argentine trade treaty headed for Genoa tonight, its hopes of success deferred "until the international situation is normalized."

At the head of the returning delegation was Senator Alberto Aquilino. An Argentine foreign office spokesman said that, although the groundwork for a future trade treaty between the two nations has been laid, accord is impossible at present owing to Argentina's position as a member of the League of Nations participating in war sanctions against Italy.

the constitution was given the committee by Solicitor-General Stanley Reed and Solicitor M. G. White, of the Agriculture Department.

The house agriculture committee also pondered the question. Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, announced members added a section in the administration bill to authorize the secretary of agriculture "to use local county and community committees of producers and the agricultural extension service or other approved state agency" in farm relief.

At the department itself officials said legislative means to recover refund AAA taxes from processors probably will be sought. They said congress probably would be asked to enact a retroactive tax or an excess profits levy.

It was said retroactive processing taxes could be imposed from the date of the enactment of the old law to the date of AAA's invalidation. The new assessments could be returned to those who paid the government but not to those whose payments had been impounded and returned by court order. The alternative plan would contemplate recovery as "excess profits" of the $200,000,000 in processing fees refunded under the rice millers decision.

SIMPLE SERVICES MARK KING GEORGE'S FUNERAL

tumult to the quiet country town of Windsor by rail and was taken through the narrow streets along the winding castle road, past the famous tower of the chapel.

The old Sebastopol bell, which was captured in the 1855 siege of Sebastopol and tolls only at the funerals of sovereigns, broke its long silence and six jackdaws, startled, fluttered about the tower, which overlooked a beautiful stretch of the Thames.

One hundred thousand persons were massed along the mile and a half from the railroad station to St. George's chapel. The train arrived at 1:05 p. m. (7:05 a. m. Atlanta time), 35 minutes late because crowds delayed the start in London, preventing passage of the cortege.

Bluejackets pulled the gun carriage bearing the coffin. Behind walked King Edward VIII, and his three brothers. There were no funeral marches as the massed band of mourners walked crunchingly along the gravel road.

After Edward, his brothers, relatives and visiting royalty rode the widowed Queen Mother Mary in a small carriage. Among those with her were little Princess Elizabeth, dressed in regulation mourning, to say goodbye to her grandfather.

The body was piped into the chapel with the Scottish lament, "Flowers of the Forest."

Brief Church Service. The church service, of the utmost simplicity, lasted 30 minutes and then the farewell was over.

One note of marked modernity was a battery of a dozen microphones at the altar.

Military units in the procession, many brilliantly uniformed, walked in grave precision. The foreign royalty, however, just walked along in a heterogeneous group, so compact that spectators had difficulty picking them out before they passed.

George lies among a number of his predecessors, including Edward VII, his father, who was buried in 1910; George III, Henry VIII, and Charles I, who was beheaded and buried in silence, since Oliver Cromwell forbade the reading of a funeral service for Queen Alexandra, George's mother, also is buried there.

The weather was rainy in the morning but clear in the afternoon.

When the body was taken into the chapel four black-coated men walked to the choir and took seats in precedent over ambassadors and princes. They were the king's personal servants.

Edward, Queen Mother Mary. King Edward walked directly behind the coffin into the chapel. Queen Mother Mary in his right. She carried a rolled umbrella in her right hand. Her face, under a black veil, was pale.

Just after they walked King Haakon and Queen Maud, of Norway. She is George's sole surviving sister. They were followed by the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent and Princess Elizabeth.

Immediately after the service the royal family returned to London, ending eight days of solemn ceremonial. George, who was 70, died at Sandringham House after a sudden illness.

The body was placed in the crypt at 2:14 p. m. The Archbishop of Canterbury, his voice tense with emotion, pronounced the burial rites of the Church of England.

"We, therefore, commit his body to the ground; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust; in sure and certain hope of resurrection to eternal life."

The queen mother bore up bravely throughout the service. She blinked her eyes, however, as the Bishop of Winchester started reading the lesson.

Sir Gerald Wollaston, garter principal knave of England, read the titles of the late king and of the new king. The lesson was from Revelation—"I saw a new heaven and a new earth," followed by the hymn, "I Heard a Voice From Heaven."

Favorite Hymn Played. The king's favorite hymn, "Abide With Me," was sung. After the coffin was lowered, the choir sang the anthem, "God Be in My Head." The dead march, from Saul, concluded the service.

London was a highway of mourning, with millions lining the streets. Some had slept on sidewalks with newspapers as blankets.

Hawkers, unawed by the occasion, made some profits by selling mourning buttons, old newspapers to shield the throngs from the rain and tiny squares of linoleum to protect their feet from the wet pavements. They also offered zoned blocks of wood for the spectators to stand on and attain additional height. Periscopes sold for 6 pence and up.

Shopkeepers also reaped a harvest by selling seats and standing room in their show windows. The poorest seats brought two guineas (about $10.50).

Representatives of 47 nations participated in the procession from Westminster Hall, where the monarch had lain in state since Friday. Nearly 1,000,000 persons had viewed the body there.

The same gun carriage on which Edward VII and Queen Victoria were taken to their graves bore the body. It was drawn by 150 sailors, for George was known as the "sailor king."

Edward VIII, the visiting kings and representatives followed on foot through the silent streets.

Body Wrapped in Silk. The body of the king was wrapped in a silken shroud and the coffin was surrounded with the coronation robes, the crown, the sceptre and the orb, and a floral wreath from Queen Mary.

The procession passed along Parliament street, Whitehall, the Mall, St. James' street, Piccadilly to Hyde Park corner, then to Marble Arch, along Edgware road and Cambridge terrace to the station. It took more than two hours to reach the station, over the four and one-half miles.

Seven carriages carried Queen Mary and the other royal women mourners. Four coaches, dressed in red, rode on each carriage.

When the procession passed the cenotaph, King Edward saluted smartly in full fashion, palm inward. Six bands and 100 bagpipers in kilts marched ahead of the gun carriage and sounded the funeral march in tune.

The procession was forced to halt three times to allow ambulances to remove persons who had fainted.

Great crowds stood silently, many with tears in their eyes, as the coffin passed by. King Edward limped slightly as he walked and was seen to bite his lips, apparently to maintain his composure.

Dressed as Admiral. He wore the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. His boots became muddy as he tramped over the cobblestones.

Five special trains carried special mourners from Paddington station to Windsor.

In the chapel were more than 2,000 wreaths. They included 500 white pearl carnations from Emperor Hirohito of Japan and a humble sprig of snowdrops from a schoolboy.

An offering of seven-foot red carnations from Premier Mussolini lay near a cross of white lilac and daffodils from a schoolboy.

Seats in the nave were arranged in shallow tiers on each side of the aisle and facing it. The aisle itself was carpeted in rich blue, while the catwalk was draped in purple.

After the service was concluded, King Edward, Queen Mary and other relatives passed slowly before the open casket. A last look at the flower-covered casket. The remainder of the great congregation then paid similar tribute to the beloved sovereign.

The departure of King Edward's train was slightly delayed. He was observed seated at a train window impassively looking out at the throng on the platform across the track.

GOVERNOR O. K. ALLEN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH to be inaugurated Governor on May 12.

Representative Cleveland Deas, Leche's opponent on the anti-Long ticket in the bitter campaign, expressed his condolences to Mrs. Allen from his home at Alexandria.

Allen J. Ellender, speaker of the house of representatives and successful Long-Allen candidate for the six-year term in the United States senate succeeding Long, rushed to the capital from his home at Houma.

"I am so dumbfounded I don't know what to say," Ellender said.

Flies to Capital. Lieutenant Governor Noe chartered an airplane at Monroe and flew here to take the oath of office and administer the dictated laws of the late Long for the nearly four months intervening until Leche is inaugurated.

Lieutenant Governor Noe was sworn in as governor succeeding the late Governor Allen by Associate Justice John B. Fournet, of the state supreme court.

After he had taken the oath of office in the governor's private office he issued a statement in which he deplored the loss by death of his two "closest and dearest friends," Long and Allen, and issued a formal statement in which he proclaimed he would carry out their policies and work without change.

Governor Noe's statement declared to the people of Louisiana that "there will be no change in policy in any way whatsoever in the governing of this sovereign state."

"I trust that the Almighty God," he said, "will endow me with the talents, the foresight, the milk of human kindness to bring to a close the last few months of the administration of O. K. Allen in the same manner in which he so ably administered the affairs of our state in carrying on the work of Huey P. Long."

"During the next four months all my efforts and abilities will be directed toward continuing the work of O. K. Allen and I will depend on his friends as well as my own to assist me in carrying on after him as conscientiously as he has done after Huey P. Long."

Administration leaders and politicians were planning to caucus over the method of procedure in selecting a nominee for the unfinished term of Long in the senate to which Governor Allen was nominated last Tuesday.

It was expected that under the law the democratic state central committee, of which Allen was chairman, would call a meeting and nominate a successor to the Governor whose name would go on the ticket for the general election to be held April 21.

Jeff B. Snyder, of Tallulah, vice chairman, became acting chairman of the state committee.

With the slaying of Long last September, his grasp of the state administration fell upon the shoulders of his boyhood friend, Allen, his closest political associate. With Allen's passing that responsibility was taken up by Lieutenant Governor Noe, also a staunch supporter of Huey Long.

Open Break. When the Long-Allen ticket was being framed last fall Noe had already taken the jump and announced his candidacy for governor on the "share-no-wealth" platform of Long, but Allen and the other machine leaders shunted aside his candidacy and caused an open break between Noe and the administration.

Noe later withdrew his candidacy and supported the Long-Allen ticket which re-elected him as a member of the state senate in the primary.

Mrs. Allen was crushed with grief, but was reported bearing up with fortitude, as were the Governor's two sons, O. K. Allen Jr., 21, and Asa Benton Allen, 11.

Mrs. Frederick J. Stare, the former Miss Joyce Love Allen, now with her husband in Cambridge, England, was cabled news of her father's death.

Offices Closed. State offices over Louisiana were ordered closed in respect to the governor, and were expected to remain closed until after his funeral.

From other governors and high public officials of the nation and from citizens in every city and hamlet in Louisiana messages of sympathy were received by Mrs. Allen.

There was a close tie between Allen and Long from early boyhood; he followed Long into the governorship and then was named to succeed him in Washington.

Just before leaving his statehouse office for the last time, Governor Allen was asked about his probable policy and activity when he assumed Long's senate seat.

"I can't say what I'm going to do," he replied. "I'm still governor, you know. They'll hear about me, though."

Complains of Throat. The first indication that Governor Allen was ill came when he complained of his throat hurting him after he arose. Mrs. Allen asked a nurse, Miss Alice Farlowe, to bring some "clearest and dearest" friends.

He began to feel worse, and physicians were summoned but could not save his life. Death came at 10:40 a. m. Atlanta time.

The governor was described as being jovial when he retired last night, saying he had had "his best day in months."

Asa Benton, the younger son, slept with his father and the governor placed a pillow under the younger's head, remarking how much he loved his baby boy.

Allen is survived by his wife and three children, his mother, Mrs. Sophronia Perkins Allen, of Shreveport; two brothers, Ira Allen and A. Leonard Allen, a Winfield attorney; and two sisters, Mrs. J. Tre Abrahams, of Sikes, La., and Mrs. A. H. Broyles, of Shreveport.

TALMADGE SAYS DEATH GREAT LOSS TO NATION

Governor Talmadge said Tuesday the death of Governor O. K. Allen, personal friend of the governor, was a great loss to the state of Louisiana, but for the nation.

"I'm awfully sorry to hear it," Talmadge said. "You know, I got a wife made last night yesterday saying he was not feeling well and that he would not be able to attend the convention in Macon, but that he was sending someone to represent him."

"Governor Allen was a personal and political friend of mine. He was an honest and a courageous man."

REV. SMITH SHOCKED AT DEATH OF ALLEN

The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, in Atlanta Tuesday, said he was "shocked almost beyond expression" at the sudden death of Governor O. K. Allen, of Louisiana.

"It takes more than death to wipe out the words 'Long and Allen,'" the leader of the share the wealth club of the late Senator Huey P. Long commented.

term of the late Huey P. Long, said his death was an "irreparable loss."

"The death of Governor Allen comes to me as a severe shock," Overton said. "The man who has the history of Louisiana have shown more devotion to solution of its economic problems, especially its highways and bridges than Governor Allen, which came as a great shock to me. I tender the sympathy of myself and of the citizens of Mississippi to our bereaved neighbor state. May the greatest comfort bring you peace in your hours of sorrow."

ALLEN'S DEATH PROVES SHOCK TO GOV. GRAVES

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Governor Bibb Graves today sent a telegram of condolence to the family of the late Governor O. K. Allen, of Louisiana, who died unexpectedly at his home in Washington.

"I was shocked to learn of Governor Allen's untimely death," Governor Graves said in sending the telegram. "The loss of a man of his caliber and the Louisiana chief's passing is a loss which will be felt sincerely by Louisiana and the south."

TALMADGE INSURGENTS MEET IN MACON TODAY

southern and border states would send a delegation to the meeting.

The message was addressed to all "Jeffersonian democrats" who stand for constitutional government "recognizing the sovereign rights of the states and the private rights of the citizens."

Suggestion of a rift in the anti-New Deal ranks in the south came on the eve of the convention with a statement last night from Judge Richard Leche, democratic nominee for governor in Louisiana, repudiating a pledge made last week by Gerald L. K. Smith that Long and Talmadge forces would join in their fight on Roosevelt.

"Smith national organizer of the Long share-no-wealth club, on a visit to Atlanta, said while they would be no amalgamation of Long and Talmadge strength the groups would be united in opposition to the President and would send five southern anti-Roosevelt delegations to Philadelphia."

Judge Leche last night said, "I thought I made this clear in the opening statement of my campaign. No individual or group of individuals speaks for me or for my administration."

Smith Invited. Kirby said former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who criticized the Roosevelt administration in an address before an American Liberty League gathering in Washington last week, had been invited.

Smith's New York office reported he had not received the invitation.

The executive committee of the organization met tonight to discuss a platform and after two hours of consideration named a subcommittee of seven to work out the program and report to the group at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Named on the subcommittee were Hugh Howell, of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgia democratic executive committee; Thomas Dixon, of New York; George Koester, of Greenville, S. C.; Ewing L. Mitchell, former assistant secretary of commerce, from Missouri; E. W. Waybright, of Florida, and A. G. Ewing, of Tennessee.

The subcommittee was decided upon to expedite handling of the discussion.

The mass meeting was scheduled to open at 11 a. m., eastern standard time. Talmadge's address will be broadcast at 1:15 p. m., eastern standard time. In Atlanta, the broadcast will come in over station WGST from 12:15 to 12:45 o'clock.

PLAN TO SPLIT PARTY SEEN BY DENNIS

EATON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—State Senator Frank A. Dennis today said he viewed the anti-Roosevelt meeting in Macon tomorrow as a move to "split the democratic party in Georgia, thereby making it possible for the republican party to carry the state."

"I feel that any Georgians holding an elective or appointive office and going to this meeting," Senator Dennis said in a statement, "should go back home and tender their resignations to the Georgia democrats who gave them the office they now hold."

Smiling and red-nosed, Talmadge arrived here tonight and immediately there was a stream of visitors to his hotel suite.

Publicity headquarters announced Thomas Dixon, of New York, historian of reconstruction days in the south, had been added to the program and will speak briefly.

SEN. BORAH ADVOCATES AGGRESSIVE PLATFORM

"I may be wrong, but I'm never in doubt."

In succession, then, Borah voiced belief in self-determination of the judiciary, preservation of the constitution and the principles of the old age pension.

Uninstructed Delegates. The Idaho senator, addressing a Borah-for-president meeting at Knott temple, in Brooklyn, made no declaration as to his own possible candidacy, but strongly opposed selection of uninstructed delegates to the national convention in June.

Such a course, he declared in an extemporaneous speech, meant the disenfranchising of republican voters.

"Parties rest rather lightly upon the shoulders of the people at this time, as we unfortunately know," he said, "and a system which permits a few self-appointed and self-anointed gentlemen to select candidates for the presidency without consultation or advice of the voters will not satisfy the million of voters in this campaign."

This reference to "party ties" was interpreted by some in the audience of 3,000 as an indication Borah would not leave the regular organization in the coming elections.

In an brief reference to his possible candidacy, the Idahoan said: "You doubtless read in your great papers recently the long and learned story of my great unfitness for the presidency. . . . That brings me to the question of a living platform. . . . I can consider and that question is:

"Who is going to determine the fitness and how is it going to be determined?"

Heckled by Negroes. Borah was heckled by negroes in the audience for his position on the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill.

He also voiced his old antagonism against monopoly, asserting that "government regimentation" was preferable to "monopoly regimentation."

Borah made no reference to the death of Alfred E. Smith before the American Liberty League.

"Last Saturday night over the radio I listened to the most eloquent and most impressive funeral oration that I have ever heard," he said.

"It was your brilliant and distinguished ex-governor, speaking over the dead body of the Chicago platform."

"I stood over the body of Julius Caesar. And as the adroit orator of the evening drew back the shroud from the dead platform and pointed to the numerous wounds inflicted by those whom he called traitors, you could hear the anti-Roosevelt democrats and the regular republicans cheering to the echo."

Living Platform Urged. "How true do love an insurgent when he is in the other party," he said. "But republican friends let us not make the fatal mistake—the fatal mistake of assuming that this election will turn upon the question of a dead platform. It must turn upon the question of a living platform. And if the republican party does not give the people a living platform, you may be assured that the election will not be gratifying in its result."

And if you are going to give them a living platform, a platform which represents the aspirations and the ideals of the American people, men and women who have suffered in recent years, if you are going to give them that kind of a platform, then I say to you: Get just as close to the voters as you can when you are selecting the delegates to select the candidate for the presidency of the United States."

William Ziegler Jr., head of the Borah-for-president committee, sponsoring the meeting, put forth Borah's name as the man to lead the republican party next fall.

"We who have been sleeping are now about awake," said Ziegler, former treasurer of the republican state committee.

Borah was accompanied by W. Kingsland Macy, a leader of the Borah-for-president movement in New York state, and was immediately serenaded with a new "campaign song," with the refrain, "Borah Rah, Rah, Rah."

Less Power. Senator Borah declared the republican party approached 1936 with less power and with less influence in national affairs than any time in its history.

"There must be a reason. In my opinion the reason is within the party and not outside the party."

The reasons, he said, must be ascertained before the 1936 convention.

"Unless we do," he said, "I am of the opinion we will find them from uninstructed delegates to the Cleveland convention."

"It is my opinion the country is predominantly republican."

Issues may change, but not principles of the party, he said, going back to McKinley and Roosevelt.

It is necessary, he said, "to ascertain to be neutral. But you can't be neutral and try to stop a foreign war."

"You can't be neutral and interfere with other people's foreign policy."

The thought of our foreign policy League, a non-partisan group, it was announced.

Former Governor Ruby Laffoon, state national committeeman, said tonight that if the Georgia governor came here he would invite him to be his guest.

Such a platform, he said, would mean a republican victory.

"That's all I'm going to say about this now," Borah declared, and then added: "I'll be back in the state later to say more."

Borah then switched abruptly to the United States foreign policy and the question of neutrality.

"Every one, it seems, he said, 'wants to be neutral. But you can't be neutral and try to stop a foreign war.'" should be complete divorce from the political embroilments of other nations.

"The only way to remain out of Europe is to remain out of Europe. All matters, territorial adjustments and balance of power and the like, he said, 'ought to have no part in the affairs of this nation.'"

"Wood and Wagon." Borah said the "secret treaties" of the World War were woven "into the wool and warp" of Europe.

"And the League of Nations," he said, "was designed to maintain it."

Turning next to the constitution, Borah struck vigorously at the delegation of law-making powers by congress.

He declared that laws promulgated under unlawful delegation of power were just as arbitrary as "decrees of Mussolini."

He continued: "The question is constantly asked: Shall we amend the constitution? The forefathers very wisely provided a system of amending the constitution of the United States and I do not think we need to be uneasy about any amendment which the people themselves make. If they make a mistake, they will correct it."

"But the dangers which we encounter are not amendments which the people themselves make, but amendments to the constitution through the usurpation of congress or the usurpation of the executive department of the United States."

Has No Challenge. Borah then took notice of the picketing by negroes of the hall because of his opposition to the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill, and said he had no challenge of their "sincerity."

A question was sent up by a negro member of the audience asking Borah's stand on his "program." This Borah recognized as "sincerity."

VETERANS TO ATTACK LICENSE TAX STATUTE

Would Broaden Exemption
Provisions To Include More Small Businesses.

A. L. Henson, state veterans' service officer, said yesterday he had been authorized by Governor Tamm to bring a suit in superior court attacking a provision of the Georgia tax act of 1935 denying business license exemptions to certain veterans.

An American Legion committee, composed of C. Ben McCullar, Millington; John P. Christ, Thomas; and Kenneth R. Murrell, Atlanta, called on the Governor yesterday and protested the provisions. The committee was appointed at Macon Monday by State Commander Ben T. Watkins.

The provision of the law which the veterans complain denies exemptions to veterans with more than one employee. It was passed March 28, 1935, by the general assembly.

A few days previous, on March 15, the Legion had given its approval to a veterans' bill making the payment of income tax the determining factor in business license exemption.

STOP THAT COLD THE FIRST DAY!

A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Trust to no makeshift methods. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD treatment and not a preparation good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective treatment for a cold. It is expressly a cold tablet. It is internal and definite—and it does four important things. It opens the bowels, combats the infection in the system, relieves the headache and fever, and tones and fortifies the system. Don't be satisfied with anything less. Records Are Surpassed at Mortgage Clinic

Records for all similar insured mortgage clinics, conducted throughout the United States by the Federal Housing Administration, were shattered in Atlanta yesterday when applicants signed up for more than $400,000 loans to repair old homes or build new ones or refinance their present holdings. Henry D. Kahrs (center), FHA valuator, is shown interviewing one couple at the height of a busy day. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

Insured Mortgage Clinic Results Surpass Records of Other Cities

More than $400,000 of new business for the Federal Housing Administration and the banks and builders of Atlanta was signed up yesterday, the opening day of the "insured mortgage clinic" at 101 Marietta street.

Atlanta's first-day record surpasses by more than $150,000 the first-day record of all cities where similar clinics have been conducted. The record so far has been $249,000, at these clinics have been held in such cities as Boston, Cleveland, Buffalo and Louisville.

From 9 o'clock yesterday morning until 8 o'clock last night, prospective home-owners or present home-owners, who are seeking some means of financing new homes, the renovation of old homes or refinancing of their present holdings, poured into the clinic at 101 Marietta street.

Continues Through Saturday. The clinic will continue through Saturday and will be open each day from 9 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night. The late closing hour at night is for the convenience of persons who are not able to visit the clinic during the hours of normal business.

Judge Waldo DeLoache, Georgia state director of the FHA, and W. A. Sirmion, his associate, both declared yesterday that the first day's results had exceeded all expectations. The staff of expert advisers was increased during the day as the crowds of applicants grew.

Mr. Sirmion explained yesterday: "It is the purpose of the clinic to present the FHA's insured mortgage plan to property owners who desire to finance the building of new homes on a plan of equal monthly payments which will pay off the entire indebtedness when the mortgage matures.

Renewals Unnecessary. "The plan makes unnecessary the renewal of mortgage and offers the borrower a 6 per cent rate which includes the insurance premium paid to the FHA.

"This plan is also available to those home owners who have a present mortgage indebtedness on their property and which they desire to refinance on more favorable terms and on an insured basis.

"The plan is also for home owners whose properties are now unencumbered and who desire to create a mortgage indebtedness to meet existing debts which were previously contracted by the home owner and which he desires to finance over a longer period of time. The proceeds of the loan may be used to purchase other property.

"Our plan is simple. Some people

INSURANCE RATES REDUCTION ASKED

Department Considers Recommendations To Lower Compensation Rates.

Ransom Wright, deputy state insurance commissioner, yesterday took under advisement a recommendation of the Georgia Workmen's Compensation Board for a reduction of 12.2 per cent in the rate charged for compensation insurance. Mr. Wright held a hearing on the matter yesterday.

T. M. Forbes, secretary of the Georgia Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and J. P. McGrath, secretary of the Georgia Manufacturers' Association, told the deputy commissioner that they were agreeable to the reduction fixed by the compensation board.

A number of representatives of insurance companies told Mr. Wright they were agreeable to a reduction of 7.9 per cent but that a further reduction would be excessive.

Chairman Hal M. Stanley, of the Commission of Commerce and Labor, said that the 12.2 per cent reduction would save the employees of the state approximately $100,000 annually.

M. C. Welch, an associate of the Postal Telegraph Company here for 35 years, died yesterday at a private hospital. His home was at 1476 North Highland avenue, N. E.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Miss Marie Welch; a son, M. C. Welch; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Boyen, of Rock Island, Ill., and Mrs. P. C. Whitmer, of Muscatine, Iowa, and a brother, John Welch, of Des Moines, Iowa.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son with the Rev. Russell K. Smith officiating. Burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

INDICTMENTS FOUND AGAINST 4 DOCTORS

Federal grand jury indictments, charging four Atlanta physicians and one Atlanta druggist with violation of the Harrison narcotic law, were returned yesterday.

Dr. Cunningham was jointly indicted with Ira E. Delamater, druggist, on a charge that Delamater illegally filled four prescriptions illegally issued by the doctor, as the result of a conspiracy.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin Williams was indicted on seven counts, charging failure to make and keep duplicate order forms of purchases of narcotic drugs, as required by statute.

Drs. David B. Hawkins and Jephtha Stephen Freeman were indicted separately on charges that they distributed drugs to addicts.

MORE MONEY NEEDED FOR SLUM CLEARANCE

Ickes Says Rentals Will Rise
If Legislation Is Not Forthcoming.

Permission for administration of the PWA slum clearance and low-cost housing program, including Techwood and Atlanta University projects here, will require additional legislative action if rentals are to be kept at the originally planned low figure, according to a statement received here yesterday from Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The opinion followed a ruling by Comptroller General J. R. McCullar that rentals on the first ten housing projects must be high enough to pay back the government's total investment.

Ickes had intended to base rentals on 55 per cent of the total cost, leaving 45 per cent as a federal donation.

Administrator Ickes said he had been of the opinion for some time that additional legislation would be necessary if the program were to be administered as he had planned. Asked his opinion on the matter, Comptroller McCullar declared there is nothing in the present law which contemplates the allowance of a 45 per cent capital grant by the federal government for these projects and that, in the absence of further legislation, no PWA grants could be applied to slum clearance projects financed from NIRA funds.

Based on 55 per cent of total costs, rentals would approximate $8.31 per room per month, though no exact or conclusive figure has been set.

In conformity with the opinion of the comptroller general, proper congressional authority will be sought at once, Administrator Ickes declared, to enable the renting of the projects at rates which will reach the low-income group now forced to live under substandard and slum conditions.

D. A. Calhoun, district manager of the housing division here, said last night he had still received no official communication regarding the ruling or rentals, which will be set in Washington.

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 29, 1936.

LEST WE FORGET!

In his recent address in denunciation of the Roosevelt administration and in criticism of the methods adopted to bring about a return to national prosperity, former Governor Al Smith asked the public to make comparison of conditions now with those existing three years ago, saying: "We are no better off now than we were then."

In his powerful and convincing answer of last night, Senator Joe Robinson said: "Governor Smith boldly asserts that our great offensive to overcome the depression and adjust the nation's economic life had accomplished nothing and brought us nowhere—I challenge the accuracy of that assertion."

Well might he challenge it, since the charge of Governor Smith brings to the front the real issue—whether or not the country has been benefited by the Roosevelt policies.

If what Smith said is true, then the country might well give serious consideration to his criticism. As to the accuracy of his attack on the democratic administration, it is well enough, lest we forget, that the country take stock of conditions now and, as suggested by Smith, compare them with those existing three years ago when a progressive and virile democratic administration took over the government after 12 years of reactionary republican control.

In February, 1933, cotton was selling for 5.95 cents per pound, as against the 11.95 cents it is bringing today; the increase in the price of wheat has been from 47 cents a bushel to $1.02, of corn from 24 cents to 56 cents, of oats from 16 cents to 31 cents, of hogs from $3.25 per hundred to $10.25, of beef from $5.75 to $11.75.

Three years ago southern farmers were receiving only $2.72 for their cottonseed oil, now they receive $9.48, while the 12 cents a dozen for eggs has increased to 27 cents on the Atlanta market, with hens increasing from 10 cents a pound to 16 cents.

The total income of the farmers of Georgia in 1932 from their products of all kinds was $67,000,000. In 1935 these same products sold for more than $200,000,000, the total being little less than the largest amount received in any year for the agricultural products of the state.

So it has been with the farmers of all the agricultural states of the Union. Where three years ago their homes were being foreclosed and they were in debt to bankers, grocers and supply men, they now are largely free of debt, have money in the bank, are riding in new automobiles, and have replenished their farm stock and machinery.

Three years ago there were 8,000 closed banks in the country and the financial outlook was the darkest in the history of the country. Today the banks of Georgia, and of practically every other state, have more money on deposit than ever in their history and are in sound and prosperous condition.

In other phases of the nation's economic life equally revolutionary changes have taken place. Unemployment has declined 30 per cent;

Industrial production has gone up 31 per cent, stocks have increased 134 per cent in value and bonds 22 per cent. There has been a sound and material increase in the value of business and residential real estate and credit has been created where three years ago there was practically no credit.

An entire economic structure that had been flattened out by the effect of three years of depression has been rebuilt and again stands on a solid foundation.

No wonder Senator Robinson reminds the country that "when the Roosevelt administration came into power hungry and abandoned men in the cities were searching the garbage pails for waste scraps and the American farms were halting court foreclosures by physical force—which borders little short of revolution—and Governor Smith says there has been no progress."

The best answer to Governor Smith's unfortunate speech is to be found in the speeches he delivered in 1928 when he was himself a candidate for the presidency, and while he was still in intimate touch with the masses of the people.

But it will at least serve a good purpose in enforcing upon the minds of the American people the strides forward from the depths of devastating depression that have been made under the inspired leadership of President Roosevelt—steps designed for the dual purpose of rescuing the country from its plight and erecting safeguards against a recurrence of such an economic catastrophe in future.

Look at the figures—lest we forget!

THE MANCHUKUO OF TODAY

The address by Julien Bryan at Glenn Memorial auditorium at Emory University Thursday night on "The Human Interest Side of Manchukuo and Japan, 1935," should prove both interesting and instructive in its description of the fast-changing conditions in an area that has for the past several years been frequently in the forefront of the news.

Three years ago the Chinese province of Manchuria was little changed from what it had been for many centuries, but under the magic influence of modern civilization, as applied by the Japanese, it is becoming, in many respects, the most modern area of its size in the world.

Great cities have appeared almost overnight on the site of what were for thousands of years sleepy, dirty and bandit-infested Chinese towns. The skies are criss-crossed with commercial air routes, and air-conditioned, streamlined trains travel the length and breadth of the new state. In the one-time sleepy Chinese town of Chian Chun a capital of rare beauty is being created through the labor of thousands of coolies directed by architects and contractors from the four corners of the earth.

Julien Bryan has packed a wealth of adventure and travel into his 18 years of adult life, and as an experienced lecturer and writer his address at Emory, liberally illustrated with motion pictures of the meteoric development going on in Manchukuo, is certain to prove a treat to those who are interested in the conditions in the far places of the earth which are, to most of us, both strange and fascinating.

ON THE JOB

Alabama and Tennessee recently established highway patrols with a view of enforcing traffic regulations and reducing the number of automobile accidents that have been occurring in those states.

It is evident that the highway officers are attending to their duties in an efficient manner and without respect to persons, for it is reported that Lieutenant Governor Thomas E. Knight Jr., of Tennessee, and his chauffeur were nabbed for a delinquent tag—and the new tag was immediately purchased.

Then Governor Bibb Graves, en route to his seaside cottage at Foley, was stopped by one of the 74 highway patrolmen for a faulty tail light, but was released upon his official promise to buy a new light at the next town.

There is no danger of any autoist being nabbed by a highway patrolman in Georgia while violating the law, because the state does not have a highway patrol.

However, the city of Atlanta has some traffic officers, and if they were more vigilant there would be fewer "one-eyed" automobiles on the city's streets at all hours after nightfall, and a smaller number of machines with no tail lights.

Both are potential elements of danger, but laxness on the part of patrolmen in correcting this state of affairs tends to make the average motorist careless. The same condition exists as regards cars parked on dark streets, some of them for a short time, others for the entire night.

World's Window

An American Reports

"Apart from all questions of principle and of religious persecution, one of the most serious facts confronting the community of states. More than half a million persons against whom no charge can be made except that they are not what the national-socialists choose to regard as 'Nordic,' are being crushed."

With these words James G. McDonald, high commissioner for refugees, addressed his resignation to the League of Nations. In his view the problem of the Jews in the Reich has become so great that private philanthropic assistance can no longer be expected to cope with it. The governments of the world must interfere. Mr. McDonald is an American, and a perfectly impartial man, not at all given to sensations, but with a complete knowledge of what is going on in the Reich. He says in his report: "Jews are excluded from all public offices from the exercise of the liberal professions down to the lowest of the cultural and intellectual life in the Reich. Outcasted, they are subjected to every kind of humiliation. Neither age nor sex exempts them from persecution. Even the children do not escape cruel forms of segregation and persecution. In party publications, directly sponsored by the government, 'The Jews and Christian League of Nations' is the latest attack on them, and to incite their own parents to exterminate the Jews altogether."

"It is increasingly difficult for Jews in Germany to sustain life," Mr. McDonald goes on. "Condemned to segregation within the four corners of the legal and social ghetto, which nations have closed upon them, they are increasingly prevented from earning their living. Indeed, more than half the Jews remaining in Germany have been deprived of a livelihood. In many parts of the country there is a systematic attempt at starvation of the Jewish population. In no field of economic activity is there any security whatsoever. For some time it has been impossible for Jewish businessmen and shopkeepers to carry on their trade in small towns. He goes on in that way to enumerate the woes of the Jews."

In February, 1933, when I wrote from Germany that some such program was in the course of preparation and execution, the German government, the United States of America and in Canada were instructed to brand me as a liar and to discredit me with the newspaper editors by saying that I was a Jew-baiter. The report of Mr. McDonald and I stand confirmed. I am not glad of it. I would have been willing to have been completely repudiated if that repudiation had been spared those innocent people. But there you are. The Jew is told that Germany wants to get rid of him, but that he would be better off if he stayed. He is told that if he goes at all he must go poor, and other countries do not want the poor. "Nor is there any hope for the Jew," says the "Morgen Freiheit" in comment on the McDonald report. "The Nazi evangelist does not lightly cease to preach the Good Tidings of race-hatred that have brought his kingdom."

"The victims of the terrorism are driven to the point," says Mr. McDonald further, "where, in utter despair, they may burst the frontiers in fresh waves of refugee. If this is the case, it is also true, the matter becomes one of international concern. Mr. McDonald indeed suggests that the fate of the Jew calls for 'international interest.' This is the minimum government, by all pacific means, on the part of the League of Nations, of its member states and other members of the community of nations."

This seems the least that can be done. If Germany does not want her non-Aryans let her make their lives more tolerable until they go, and let her rid herself of them. That is the minimum of elementary human decency. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution.)

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"THE GREATEST AMERICAN." I picked up a high school boy the other afternoon out on Ponce de Leon, and as we rode along he asked me, "Why didn't you say something about the greatest American on his birthday?" "You refer to..." and I waited for his answer which came as swiftly as his question. "Benjamin Franklin!" I pulled up at the curb in front of his home and he dashed across the storm-littered lawn to his shop in the basement, where he later tells me he lives and has his being.

As I drove away I pondered this lad's remark—"the greatest American." I thought of arguments, of the knotty question of who is the greatest man produced in our nation, I got out some Franklin volumes that night and looked again at this polyglot personality. I challenge you to do the same thing. First, I want you to refresh your knowledge of his background, the tenth son in a family of 17 children, poor, often discouraged by his elders, etc., etc.

But when the world was yet awaiting explanation on almost every subject, his focused attention ranged like a searchlight over many fields. He observed the winds and developed a theory of storms. He observed the perils of poor ventilation and invented new stoves. He introduced the Gulf Stream to Falmouth shippers and demonstrated the calming effect of oil on troubled seas. From earthquakes he turned to heat-absorption of colored bodies and the fertilizing power of gypsum. He wrote about sun spots and meteors, waterpots, tides and sound. He forever glorified the kite by tapping the reservoirs of electricity. And on and on I might go to the man's marvelous contributions.

Edmund Burke, pointing at Franklin as he sat in the Reporter's gallery, said: "Does not represent the Fourth Estate or the Fifth Estate? I will answer my question by declaring that he is an honor to both." And Hume, writing in 1788, when Franklin had received the Order of the Bath from the Royal Society, said, "America has sent us many good things, but you are the first philosopher and the first great man of letters for whom we are beholden to her." Of his great works, Franklin said, "I have sought to be of service to humanity."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

ALCHEMY WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—President Roosevelt's dexterity as an alchemist was never better illustrated than in the selection of the new Federal Reserve Board. The man in the street may not know it, but that board means more to his everyday life than any other official authority in government. It runs the finances of the country; which is to say, it runs the country. Mr. Roosevelt may be the janitor of the government house, but the FRB is the control valve for the heating and cooling systems.

His problem was to renovate the board, remove old banking cobwebs, protect it from self-combustible firebrands—and get Governor Eccles confirmed past Senator Glass.

With scientific methods in his White House lab, he composed the contrary political influences into a substance which is not by any means pure gold—but at least is a board with few splinters in it.

MIXING Half the new board was his own idea and the other half was to get around Senator Glass.

The first thing he put into his mixing glass were the reappointments of his financial man Friday (Governor Eccles) and a sound liberal whom he found on the board (M. S. Szymczak). Only the insiders knew it, but Szymczak has frequently disagreed with Eccles, notably against the Eccles centralization of the open market committee.

Next, Mr. Roosevelt put in his old friend, Joseph Broderick, superintendent of banks in New York. Some years ago, as governor, he named Broderick to the New York job. Financial men characterize Broderick as a man with his feet on the ground.

These three, Eccles, Szymczak and Broderick, were the Roosevelt ideas.

FORMULA Georgia senators are understood to have been behind the No. 4 man, Ronald Ransom. He combines the legal with the banking type of mind, will probably be the composing spirit needed on every board of directors to get opposing factions together. After all, it is not inadvisable to have one banker on a Federal Reserve Board governing banks.

The Ohio Senator Bulkley (close friend of Senator Glass) is sponsor for the No. 5, John McKee, but RFC Chairman Jesse Jones is supposed to have put the appointment over. McKee was an examiner for Jones, and is also a solid citizen.

No. 6, Ralph Morrison, of Texas, is being credited on the inside to Vice President Garner, but the Texas senators were agreeable. No. 7, Mr. Roosevelt withheld because he could not find a suitable farm man.

Thus did Alchemist Roosevelt draw confirmatory strength from the senate and provide his own leadership for the board. The result is a key formula to Mr. Roosevelt's fundamental method of operations.

Note 1—There is a story going around that Al Smith's speech had something to do with the selection of the Federal Reserve Board, which came out 36 hours later. It could not possibly be true because the correct list of new board members is in the hands of senators and certain banking authorities confidentially several days before they were announced.

Note 2—You may suspect that the appointment of the seventh board member will control the board, but that may or may not be. The six may or may not split equally on political or economic lines.

POWER The overwhelming eagerness in congress to vote the bonus was a private laugh even for some of the veterans' lobbyists. It is a popular belief in congress that veterans' support is the best an ambitious public man can get, but there have been several notable unpublished experiences to prove the contrary.

A certain senator was up for re-election in a midwestern state last year. He had voted against the bonus and naturally was fearful when his campaign opened. He thought the issue might be raised to the detriment of others more important.

He was agreeably surprised when no one mentioned the bonus until the last week of the campaign. Then a man in the front row got up with the missing question. The senator replied directly, saying he would vote to pay only what was due under the old law at any given date, but no more.

The senator was amazed when his heckler deplored his stand but congratulated him for his forthrightness. The crowd cheered. It could not have worked out better for the senator if the heckler had been a plant, which he was NOT.

Note—The senator was Vandenberg, of Michigan, the only republican presidential possibility in congress who voted against the bonus.

NOTES It sounds improbable, but a New York congressman swears it is true. At any rate, the story now is being told in the house cloakroom that the newest boondoggling scheme in Connecticut is to plant briar bushes to make better cover for rabbits and thus improve hunting.

Authorities around the senate who know Mississippi do not believe that Bilbo can beat Pat Harrison, but are lamenting the vague possibility. Harrison is very popular.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

The weather we're having

Is messing, they say

Al wrapped in a wintry disguise

I'll tell you right now,

While please you it may,

For me it's a brutal surprise.

For I came to the South,

The South warm and sunny,

To escape from the cold and the ice,

And I'm asking you now

If you think this is funny?

Please tell me, is this acting nice?

Coincidence,

The Jade.

Here's coincidence for you—

One day last week, I thought I'd rhyme about that, to me,

town with so much allure in its name,

Timbuctoo. I wrote it and used it at the head of this column.

Last Sunday, in the magazine section of your paper, I chanced to read an article by Miriam Hopkins, the screen star.

In it, she mentioned that one of the plans for the new prison building at the state farm at Milledgeville, which were drawn by A. C. Bruce, of Atlanta, have been accepted by the prison commission and that the plans for the structure will be started shortly after February 1.

And Fifty

Years Ago.

The importance of the event drove a reporter of fifty years ago to redundancy.

From The Constitution of Friday, January 29, 1886:

"Pursuant to the call in The Constitution building for the purpose of considering the raising of funds to build the Georgia Midland railroad, an enthusiasm was developed in the conversational talk in the meeting; before the meeting was called to order, Mr. E. P. Chamberlin was called to the chair. Before taking the chair Mr. Chamberlin said that the meeting was called for the purpose of building the Georgia Midland railroad, and requested Mr. H. V. Grady to state more fully the object of the call.

"Mr. Grady said that Mr. C. A. Collier had stated a few days before that he was authorized to say that Atlanta would raise $100,000, it would secure beyond doubt the building of the Georgia Midland to Atlanta. With this Colonel R. F. Maddox offered for publication an interesting collection of the best verse by Ralph T. Jones. You can get a copy either by calling at the fourth floor of The Constitution or by mail to 'Silhouettes,' care of The Constitution. Price, 25 cents a copy."

Time For

Forbearance Passing.

During the height of Atlanta's ice suffering we were all properly enough, sympathetic and forbearing with the misdeeds and misadventures of the city. We realized they had a big job and were doing the best they could.

But, after almost a month, it does seem as though the city could have removed those piles of broken tree limbs that still dot the streets in many residential sections.

Some of them are really dangerous for automobile drivers. It isn't pleasant to see a great heap of twigs and branches and logs suddenly loom in your headlights and either crash or, at the least, scratch the paint job on your car, badly.

There are such piles on my own route home that have been there for three weeks, at least.

Twenty-five

Years Ago Today.

A well-known state official was in the throes of birth a quarter century ago. The Constitution of Sunday,

January 29, 1911, announced:

"The plans for the new prison building at the state farm at Milledgeville, which were drawn by A. C. Bruce, of Atlanta, have been accepted by the prison commission and that the plans for the structure will be started shortly after February 1."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Smuggled LONDON, Jan. 28.—My visit to the solemn scene of the execution of King George of England was accomplished under special circumstances. Not to put too fair a face upon a strange and sordid experience, I was bootlegged into the British house of commons and thence into the great silent vault of Westminster Hall, adjoining the house where the king lay in his coffin attended by his magnificent life guards and beef-eaters receiving the sad homage of his people.

With gate crashing in its myriad forms I have been made familiar by years of attendance at public events, but this was one gate which seemed not only impregnable but unassailable. Yet it happened and this approximately how:

Saturday evening in the company of Floyd Gibbons, who is on his way home from Eritrea, I set out on an enormous crowd of English people, some of them drawn from far parts of the country, who stood in a line about two miles long, inching toward the entrance to the hall.

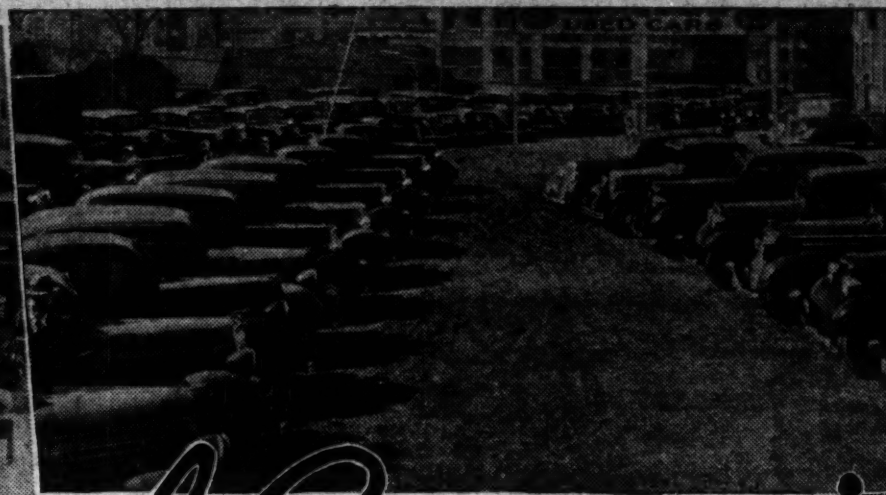

Real London There had been intermittent rain all afternoon, and these men, women and children of the middle and lower classes had been taking it without the slightest impatience in a progress which required about three hours to make the journey from the foot of the stairs to the foot of the stairs. It was a miserable night, with a milky fog hanging over Westminster and the river, and the big double-deck buses and the taxicabs picked their way carefully through the foot traffic, always overran the road under the lenient discipline of the bobbies.

Why Your Ford Dealer Offers A Money-Back Guarantee

Long ago Ford dealers recognized the necessity of delivering known value to every used car purchaser. It was not enough to supply a clean, nice-looking car which performed well enough for a demonstration—the car offered you by a Ford dealer must be fundamentally right. It must be thoroughly reconditioned and rebuilt where necessary—to give long and satisfactory service. In order to accomplish this, Ford dealers have established separate reconditioning departments. Used cars are reconditioned by expert mechanics.

Because the Ford dealer knows his used cars are put in tiptop condition before they are offered for sale—because he has complete confidence in his used cars, he is glad to pass this confidence along to you in the form of a money-back guarantee. You can always be sure of getting the right car at the right price at your Ford dealer's.

SOUTHERN LINT MILLS SCORED BY LABOR HEAD

Georgia Concerns Violated NRA Standards, House Committee Hears.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—An assertion that six of the worst offenders against the NRA obtained loans from the Reconstruction Corporation was made before a subcommittee today by John Peel, southern vice president of the United Textile Workers.

Peel, testifying in support of the Ellenbogen textile control bill, denied statements of employers that code standards were being maintained in the textile industry in the south, and read into the record a list of 63 companies which he said had violated NRA codes, and which had departed from NRA standards since the Blue Eagle's passing.

The day was devoted largely to denunciation of labor standards conditions in the south. Spokesmen for two New England governors told the committee that unusual labor costs were destroying the textile industry in the north.

Peel said the RFC loans were made to southern textile companies while strikes were in progress in their mills. He said the Mooreville Cotton Mills, of Mooreville, N. C., obtained a loan of $300,000; the Chesney Mill, of Chesney, S. C., $375,000; the Carter Mills, of Lincoln, N. C., $70,000; the Oconee Mill, of Westminster, S. C., $35,000; the Globe Cotton Mills, of Augusta, Ga., $48,750; and the Cherokee Spinning Company, of Cherokee, Tenn., $400,000.

Hours lengthened. Peel said labor of cost had been lengthened, work loads increased and wages reduced throughout the south. He was corroborated by H. D. Link, a local U. T. W. leader, of Concord, S. C., who said "there never was compliance in the south."

William Kelley, second vice president of the United Textile Workers, said much of the migration of textile mills was due to small chambers of commerce which he charged were "subsidizing the chiselers." Kelley said that the chambers of commerce were appropriating land grants and appropriations to move machinery to their communities.

Lieutenant Governor Joseph L. Hurley, representing Governor James M. Coussens, told the committee that unless something was done to make competitive conditions uniform throughout the industry, "our textile industry will become a series of deserted mill villages."

Georgia Mills Listed.
William J. Fitzgerald, deputy commissioner of labor of Connecticut, said Connecticut textile manufacturers were adhering to the 40-hour week but that there had been a breakdown of wages as a result of lengthening of hours and the reduction in the industry in other states.

Others who endorsed the bill today were Harold Daoust, of Uxbridge, Mass.; Textile Council; Rollo Wallace, of Philadelphia, secretary of the federation of carpet and rug workers, and J. L. Lawrence, president of the Textile Workers' local of Freehold, N. J.

Georgia textile mills listed by Peel as having violated NRA code standards before and after the supreme court's invalidating decision follow: Southern Brighton Company, Shannon; Atlanta Woolen Mills, Atlanta; Gate City Cotton Mills, Atlanta; Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills, Atlanta; Harmony Grove Mill, Commerce; Fulton Cotton Mill, Thomas; Callaway Mills, LaGrange; Manchester and Milledgeville, Milledgeville; Beaver-Lois, Douglasville; Aragon Mills, Aragon; Crystal Springs Mills, Crystal Springs; Peerless Woolen Mills, Rossville; Manville Mills, Milledgeville; Bibb Manufacturing Company, Macon.

Dealers Warn Buyers To Spurn 'Smugglers'
Atlanta's buyers of "smuggled" rugs and furs at fraction of their real value from peddlers are apt to discover that the merchandise has been "smuggled" no further than from some cheap manufacturing plant near by, the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association yesterday warned gullible purchasers.

Complaints have been increasing lately from the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association that "smugglers," the association reported.

Investigations have revealed the merchandise is of decidedly inferior quality and the "smugglers" operate without paying city license fees.

Purchasers, the association warned, are liable to discover that instead of holding a valuable fur they are holding the well-known bag.

HOUSE BODY APPROVES NEUTRALITY MEASURE

Senate Committee Will Hear Testimony of Bill's Opponent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The administration's permanent neutrality bill was recommended formally to the house today by the foreign affairs committee as a step toward peace, but immediately was criticized by one committeeman as likely to lead the country into war.

Chairman McNamara, democrat, Tennessee, said in his report that the committee had taken a "middle ground" between making the bill mandatory and giving the President some discretion.

"If you undertake to put our chief executive in a straight jacket on matters of this kind," he said, "you have to a great extent tied up our country so that it could not use its good offices for the prevention of war."

The bill would provide mandatory embargoes on shipments of actual implements of war and let the President use his judgment in restricting war materials, such as cotton, oil and iron, to a normal peacetime trade volume.

The senate foreign relations committee, which is hoping to report out the administration measure within 10 days, plans tomorrow to question Edwin Boddy, expert on international law at Yale University, who opposed the bill before the house committee.

The senate committee is expected, too, to consider a proposal by Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, of the munitions committee that any warring nation be compelled to carry on any trade with the United States on a cash-and-carry plan, with American vessels forbidden to enter hostile waters.

China Is Subject Of Emory Speaker
Roving Cameraman To Show Human Interest Films of Manchukuo.

"The Human Interest Side of Japan and Manchukuo," portrayed by several thousand feet of film and explained by Julian Bryan, roving cameraman for the March of Time and authority on the Manchukuo situation, will be presented Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock in Glenn Memorial church under the auspices of the Emory University Student Lecture Association.

Whether one agrees with the foreign policy of Japan or not, one cannot fail to be impressed with the fact, when traveling through Manchukuo, that Japan has brought order to millions of Chinese," Mr. Bryan recently said.

The pictures to be shown, attempt to bring out the human interest side of the orient, while Mr. Bryan will explain the significance of the actions of Japan in Chinese territory. After the presentation of the films, an informal round-table discussion will be held at which the audience may ask questions regarding the orient.

"Chinese officials are conducting their affairs efficiently and progressively under the supervision and advisement of Japanese in the new empire," Mr. Bryan said. "In the field of education, it was interesting to observe the modernization which has occurred in the school curriculum in such a brief time, abilities and physical education playing important parts in the new system."

Car Wreck in Which Four Atlantans Were Injured

AUTO VICTIM'S DEATH RAISES TOTAL TO TEN

Four persons were injured, one of them seriously, in this crash Monday night on Peachtree road. Miss Myrtice Ferrell, 19, of 839 Sells avenue, is in Crawford W. Long hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. The car plunged into one telephone pole, snapping it off, and then continued on into the one against which it is shown leaning. Two men, both of whom claimed to be the driver, were charged with reckless driving and being drunk on the street. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

VOTE INDICTMENTS IN MISDEMEANORS
Grand Jury Returns True Bills in Gambling and Liquor Cases.

Three misdemeanor indictments were returned yesterday by the Fulton grand jury.

Two were for violations of the prohibition law and one was for a lottery offense.

Judge John D. Humphries criticized the grand jury Monday on the bench for wasting county money and closing the superior courts with misdemeanors which he asserted should be tried in criminal court on charges made by accusation. Only in "rare and exceptional cases" should the grand jury consider misdemeanors, he said.

The lottery offense was charged by the grand jury to W. S. (Jack) Yenable, alleged numbers game "pick-up" man, who was arrested at the instigation of Mayor Key.

Luther Burnett and Howard Maxwell, white men, were named in true bills charging them with possessing 28 full pints of whiskey, 47 half pints of liquor, and seven pints of gin at 321 Peachtree street on January 15. They were arrested by county police.

A number of other bills were returned by the grand jury yesterday.

Other officers elected included Dr. John W. Turner, vice president, and Dr. Donald E. Cathart, secretary and treasurer.

Churches Plan Easter Service On Summit of Stone Mountain
The rays of the rising sun which will break over the imposing bulk of ancient Stone Mountain on Easter morning will find the mountain top covered by scores of worshippers from Atlanta and Stone Mountain churches engaged in a sunrise service commemorating the rising of the Saviour from His sepulchre.

Dr. G. Gleason, president of the Stone Mountain Chamber of Commerce, yesterday announced plans for the sunrise service. Easter rituals of four denominations will be presented at the service. Loud speakers at the foot of the mountain will carry the Easter messages of the ministers speaking from the mountain top, as well as hymns and anthems from the church choirs.

Dr. Waterspoon Dodge, of the Radio church, will deliver the principal sermon. He will speak on "Immortality of Influence." Other ministers participating in the services will be the Rev. Paul Traylor, of the Stone Mountain Baptist church, and the Right Reverend Dr. J. C. Oakshette, rector of the Oratory of St. Michael the Liberal Catholic church, and other denomination leaders.

The program does not call for a joint service. Mr. Gleason said, but a part of the sunrise service will be allotted to each denomination.

Faults in the federal government's policy in acquiring forest land lie in ignorance of facts, declared Verne Rhoades, of Asheville, N. C., a member of the council of the Society of American Foresters, in an address yesterday afternoon before the 35th annual meeting of the organization here.

"I am not assailing the acquisition policies of the government, but I am questioning them," he told the 400 foresters and forestry school directors assembled at the Audley hotel.

"As a member of the council of this society, I call upon the government to ascertain facts and conditions before buying timberland," he said. "Authorities should know that the forest land they buy is appropriate for government ownership and will not work against private owners and companies when bought by the government."

Mr. Rhoades' address followed talks by L. F. Kneip, assistant chief United States forester in charge of land acquisition policy, and Bernard Frank, assistant chief forester in charge of TVA land planning. Both government service men declared government acquisition of forest lands is being carried on along the most advisable lines, with judicious regard to private ownership.

Disagreement of these views was voiced by Mr. Rhoades, who used the pine and naval stores preserves of south Georgia as one example where government ownership might lead into wrong lanes. The speaker is a private forester, but was, for a number of years, connected with the United States forest service, working on the Mount Pisgah national park and TVA projects.

Committee reports and short talks occupied the morning session, and the day's meeting closed with the annual dinner of the society last night. Final sessions of the convention will be held this morning, with the COG under discussion.

2 Egyptian Students Die.
CAIRO, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Two students, wounded by police fire during demonstrations yesterday, died today, one at Mansura and the other at Dammanhour.

Officer Buys Galluses; Second Order Declined
"Kindly buy for me a pair of suspenders," was all right with the police department when a Dismal, W. Va., man recently sent 55 cents to the department with the request. At that time, Virgil Whitley, special investigator, was assigned to track down the wanted suspenders with very meager directions.

Mr. Whitley came out 1 cent in the red on the deal, but the police are accommodating and Mr. Whitley thought nothing of it. Walter L. Houston was the Bluefield purchaser.

"Kindly buy for me another pair of suspenders and send me prices on size 16 1-2 shirts," wrote Mr. Houston in a letter received yesterday.

We regret to inform you that the police are not a purchasing agency," wrote back Mr. Whitley. "We are returning herewith your money."

SANFORD IS SUGGESTED FOR GOVERNOR'S POST

Guyton Citizen Urges Candidacy of Educational Leader.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Dr. S. V. Sanford, termed a "citizen of all Georgia," was recommended as a Georgia gubernatorial candidate today in a communication to the Savannah Morning News, written by S. H. Morgan, prominent citizen of Guyton.

In his recommendation, Morgan stated that all Georgians could rally for Sanford and complimented him as "one who knows Georgia and Georgians as few other citizens of the state do; one who knows the dire distress of the many toilers of the soil and yet knows that industrialism must not be throttled because it creates the demand for the products of the soil, the forest and mine. He knows that every orderly business venture must be encouraged and allowed to work out their own success within law and order. He knows men's minds because he has aided in training thousands of them, particularly Georgians."

"We have had many lawyer-governors, doctor-governors and even a few political-governors. Let us try an education-minded governor, and when I say education-minded governor I mean just that. He knows that the common school system of Georgia is the feeder for the university units of the Georgia system. He recognizes that they must be encouraged and financially cared for to the limit of the state's abilities. He recognizes also that taxes when levied beyond a reasonable ability to pay have caused the downfall of not only empires and kingdoms but of republics as well."

Dr. Sanford, for many years president of the University of Georgia, is now chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

U. S. JUDGE VOIDS MOULTRIE VERDICT

Deaver Nullifies Trial of Negro Guarded by Soldiers.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—John Henry Sloan, Moultrie negro convicted in Colquitt superior court of slaying a white man and sentenced to death, was technically a free man tonight.

United States Judge Bascom Deaver, of the middle Georgia district, ruled that Sloan's trial was violative of the "due process of law" clause of the United States constitution.

Attorneys for Sloan appealed to United States court on the claim that his trial in Moultrie had been in an atmosphere charged with danger of mob violence, and that appeal for a new trial had been denied him because of adjournment of the term of court at which he was tried.

Sloan was convicted of slaying Otto Gay, Moultrie white man, last year after a trial at which Georgia national guardsmen were present. Guardsmen had a brush with a crowd about the courthouse as they removed him from the building following the trial.

Under Judge Deaver's decision, announced at conclusion of a two-day hearing late today, the present conviction against Sloan is nullified and he will be retried in a state court.

Sloan is held in the Bibb county jail here, where he has been since his conviction November 15.

A new warrant in the slaying case is expected to be served on him as soon as Judge Deaver's order is transcribed.

HATCHERIES QUALIFY IN POULTRY PROGRAM

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—One hatchery out of every four in the state has attained certification or approval under the Georgia poultry improvement program, says Arthur Gannon, poultry specialist with the State Agricultural Extension Service.

Gannon, acting supervisor of the poultry improvement program in Georgia, said the plan for ridding Georgia flocks of pullorum disease, bacillary white diarrhea, and of selecting and grading the flocks and chicks according to standard and egg producing qualities is a part of a national program.

The four official grades of flocks and chicks under the program are Georgia United States certified pullorum, Georgia approved pullorum, Georgia approved pullorum tested, and Georgia approved pullorum tested.

Cannon said a circular designed to help poultrymen buy chicks according to grade and quality will be printed in a few days. Copies can be obtained by writing the Agricultural Extension Service, Athens.

"I'm sorry the man was killed," Willis said a short time before he went to the electric chair, conceding that his victim had pleaded for mercy. "Our only aim was to gain our freedom."

The negro was originally imprisoned here in 1927 to serve a sentence of from 10 to 25 years for the $3,333.33 ransom kidnapping of Virginia Jo Fraser, 3-year-old Chattanooga girl.

INCOME TAXES SHOW INCREASE IN GEORGIA

Gain of $3,000,000 in Federal Levies in 1935 Reported.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Georgia federal income tax collections jumped more than $3,000,000 in 1935 over 1934, the Treasury Department reported today.

Collections for the calendar year 1935 were reported at $9,164,746, compared to $6,164,746 in 1934.

Total federal internal revenue collections in the state, however, dropped from $32,064,707 in 1934 to $28,193,181 last year, the report said.

The report said the decrease was due to decreases in agricultural adjustment and miscellaneous tax revenues.

The report said agricultural adjustment collections in Georgia amounted to only $12,577,529 last year, compared to $20,702,689 in 1934, and that miscellaneous internal revenue in 1935 was $4,000,914 against $4,870,124 the previous year.

No reason for this drop was assigned by the treasury. However, large sums in processing taxes were tied up by federal court orders.

Corporation income tax revenues from Georgia concerns were listed at $6,088,225 in 1935 and $3,606,181 the previous year, and individual income collections at $3,526,519 last year, compared to $2,876,712 for 1934.

COTTON INCOME GAIN IS NOTED IN LAURENS

DUBLIN, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Cotton put $1,951,000 into the pockets of Laurens county farmers last season, the largest amount in five years, a survey conducted here today disclosed.

Value of the 30,000 bales at an average of 11 cents was estimated at $1,575,000. The 12,000 tons of seed added $330,000 and rental and parity checks, less the taxes paid for Bankhead act certificates, yielded another $26,000.

Cotton dealers said the estimate was conservative because the market ton actually sold for more than 11 cents a pound.

Triple A rental and parity payments, in 360 checks, amounted to $185,088, but Bankhead certificates cost $188,862.

Dr. C. D. Graves said the last big money crop was harvested in 1929 when the crop brought $2,054,385. The low year, according to his records, was 1932, when the yield was $543,520.

National banks are not included in the report.

SOUTH PROSPEROUS SPEAKER DECLARES

Furniture Association Head Finds Business Outlook Bright.

If merchants and businessmen in other parts of the country can show half the results of a growing prosperity and optimism that retailers in the south exhibit, the entire country is in a most encouraging financial state, the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association was told at a dinner meeting last night by B. F. McLain, of Dallas, Texas, president of the National Retail Furniture Association.

"Since my election as president of the furniture association a short time ago, I have been on a tour of southern cities investigating business conditions," Mr. McLain said. "Everywhere I have found an optimism that is astounding. Merchants tell me they would have been satisfied if 1935 was only as good as last year, but that already increased sales and general business movement has assured them of an even greater year."

"I don't know whether I shall find such an optimistic report in my tour of northern states next spring. That is somewhat doubtful. But it is certain that the south is taking the final steps in putting the depression behind."

McLain is just completing a tour of southern states and will return to Dallas shortly. He is also president of the Texas Retail Furniture Association.

J. W. Johnson presided at the dinner and T. C. Dickson presented the speaker.

For the price of a phone call, Berlin residents may now obtain the correct time over the telephone from an automatic announcing device, and the innovation is so popular that the revenue is figured at about $2,000 a day.

NINE SENT TO JAIL IN FEDERAL COURT

Negro Given Two Years for Cashing Sister-in-Law's War Risk Checks.

Nine prisoners, accused of federal law violations, including forgery, and theft and transportation of stolen automobiles across state lines, pleaded guilty before Judge E. Marvin Underwood yesterday and three themselves on the mercy of the court.

Reverend Hill, 37-year-old negro, of Douglasville, was given a two-year sentence, the stiffest of the lot, when the judge heard the story of how he had, for six years, been stealing from the mails and cashing for himself war risk insurance checks totalling about $2,000, intended for his sister-in-law whose husband had died in France.

Hill's sister-in-law lived in North Carolina, but he had learned about the payments before they started, and sent in a change of address to the government, which called for the mailing of the checks to Hill's home. He received them and cashed them regularly between 1929 and last July. Federal officers investigating the sister-in-law's case, discovered she was receiving no money and they checked the theft to Hill.

James R. Collins, Atlanta, and Joe McGee pleaded guilty to stealing automobiles and transporting them into other states. They received a year and a day each.

J. E. Couch, Charles R. Lively and David Paxton pleaded guilty to forging government checks and were given six months each in jail.

Sampson Towles, Otto Williams, Charles Phinizy and Charles Avery pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor and were given three months each.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

REEDSVILLE, W. Va.—We got off the train this morning at 7:30 at Fairmont, W. Va., with the biggest group that I have ever come with on a day's trip, 15 in all.

Dr. Agger, of the Resettlement Division; Miss Cook and Mr. Pickett, also of that division, were coming to do some work at Arthurdale. The rest of the party was a committee of the Department of Commerce on relocation of industries, and some friends.

The road was distinctly slippery, ice underneath and snow on top, but with an expert driver we reached the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Work, and had a very excellent breakfast: poached eggs, toast, ham and coffee.

Those who had work to do went on to Arthurdale and the rest went to a place called Jerde to look at some typical miners' houses. Then we proceeded to Arthurdale, where Miss Clapp, who is head of the school, greeted us.

She showed us the kitchen where mothers were preparing lunch for their children who were attending. This is a voluntary work on the part of the mothers. The school has its own vegetables planted and taken care of by the fathers. Lunch consisted of mashed potatoes, beans, whole-wheat bread and milk.

We saw the wood-working shops, the forge and the looms which are just being set up. Then I betook myself to a meeting of the Women's Club while the rest of the party visited some of the homestead houses.

The women wanted to know what could be done about the usual things which are all wrong in new houses—pipes which freeze and roofs which leak and cellars which have water in them.

Then I attended the men's meeting and for an hour and a half Dr. Agger and I discussed their problems.

The work of the day being over, we had supper at Miss Clapp's and then attended a dance before taking the train back to Washington.

A full day, but I am sure that everyone in the party, Colonel Whetherill, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Adams, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. McCall, will agree that we have a better grasp of certain problems than we ever had before.

My Cookery News Notes

By RUTH CHAMBERS.
Selecting Food Science.

The guestwork has been pretty thoroughly taken out of the housewife's job of selecting and preparing food.

We are all becoming scientists of the kitchen, whether we realize it or not.

We've learned that meat isn't just "something to eat," and that food actually makes a difference in our success and enjoyment in life. There are people who go through life feeling tired and discouraged, not from any organic weakness but just because the food they eat doesn't provide their bodies with the right kind of "fuel."

The need for foods which contain protein to build and repair tissues, fats and starches for energy, minerals, vitamins and roughage, is pretty generally understood now, thanks to magazines, newspapers, radio and cooking schools which give the housewife the information obtained by patient experimentation in laboratories.

We Work With Better Tools.

Moreover, the methods of preparing as well as selecting foods have been revised according to newer knowledge. And again exactness takes the place of guessing. We have better tools to work with than our grandmothers.

Over thermometers, roast thermometers, careful control of the heat with which we cook, better refrigeration, transportation which brings fresh meats, vegetables and fruits to our doors from all parts of the country, throughout the year.

Why not take advantage of all these modern means and methods? Why follow old methods when the new are better?

In meat cookery, the new ways are in several respects easier and less complicated than those of yore. For instance, take this easy way to broil a steak.

Broiled Steak.

One porterhouse steak cut 1 to 2 inches thick, 4 tablespoons grated cheese, butter, salt and pepper.

Have the steak broiled over a 2 inch thick. Thoroughly pre-heat the broiler with the regulator set at "high." Place the steak in the center of the broiler rack so that there is a distance of about 3 inches between the flame and the top of the steak. When the steak is nicely browned on one side turn and broil on the other. The steak will be done when the second side is browned. Only one turning is necessary. For a 2-inch steak allow 30 to 35 minutes to be medium done. Season with salt and pepper, pour melted butter over the top and sprinkle with grated cheese. Serve on hot platter.

New Roasting Rules.

The rules for roasting meats have been revised. We no longer care a roast, and we've discovered that searing isn't necessary. Neither is basting. If the roast is rightly placed in the pan, with the fat side up. Longer cooking at lower oven temperature than was formerly recommended is now the rule.

One of the newer and already widely used aids to exactness in roasting meats is the meat thermometer. This thermometer is inserted into the meat and the temperature recorded. It gives the right height, you can be certain, no guessing about it—that the roast has attained the degree of doneness you desire.

Roast Ribs of Beef.

Choose a 2 to 3 standing rib roast of beef. If desired it may be boned and rolled. Season the roast with salt and pepper. Place it in an open roasting pan, fat side up. As the fat melts and cooks out it will baste the meat. A rolled roast should be put on a rack; a standing rib roast needs no rack for the ribs and backbone hold up the meat from drippings. Make a small incision through the fat cover, insert a roast-meat thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of the fleshiest part. Do not cover the roast and do not add any water. Place the meat in a moderate oven (300-350 degrees Fahrenheit) and allow 18 minutes to the pound for a well-done roast. Allow 16 minutes to the pound for a medium, 14 minutes for a rare roast. 22 minutes per pound for a medium, and 30 minutes per pound for a well-done roast.

Roast Leg of Lamb.

Have the "fett," the thin paper-like covering, left in place. Sprinkle the roast with salt and pepper and place, the skin side down and cut side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan. Insert roast-meat thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of the thick round of the leg, making sure that the bulb does not rest on either fat or bone. If the fat covering is very thin, lay several strips of bacon over the top. Place the roast in a moderate oven (300-350 degrees Fahrenheit) if liked slightly underdone, or 325 degrees if desired well done. Allow about 35 minutes per pound for roasting.

4 BIRMINGHAM BABIES SMOTHERED TO DEATH

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The lives of four infants were snuffed out here early today in the season's coldest weather, as mothers sought to protect them from the frigid blast. All smothered to death in coverings placed over their heads.

Two of the babies, Virginia Jean and Jimmy Hodges, five-week-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Julian B. Hodges, smothered as the mother kept a fire burning in the room where cold winds whistled through cracks.

Lexie Gay, six-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lexie Gay, of suburban Ironville, suffered a like fate.

The fourth infant victim of suffocation from coverings was a negro infant whose death was reported to County Investigator Gip Evans as due to a similar cause.

LEAD-DIRECTING DOUBLE.

Every bridge player past the novice stage knows the nature and function of penalty and take-out doubles. There is, however, a third type, not nearly as well understood but equally valuable. It is technically a double for penalties, but it carries a special implication: it directs the opening lead! True, its use is not so simple as it appears, requiring careful thought of the partner of the doubler, but close analysis of the bidding almost always will help him to interpret correctly. Today's hand is typical.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 spade Pass 2 hearts Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 no trump Double*
*Final bid.

It hardly needs to be mentioned that East's double was highly speculative, but North's bidding had been of the reluctant variety. And, in any event, East wanted that heart suit led through! Hence his double.

Undoubtedly, West would have opened one of his five card suits with-out the double. And, had he done so, three no trump would have been "on ice" regardless of the later defense. Declarer would merely clear the spade suit and if West shifted to a heart, spade would be cashed, as well as the second high diamond and, after the ace and king of clubs were played, East would be neatly thrown on lead with a club. He would cash two good clubs and the heart king, but would have to concede his low heart to dummy's queen for the ninth trick.

With the jack of hearts opening, however, it was a different story. West could not be prevented from capturing the lead later with his queen of spades, and a second heart would insure the defenders their fifth and setting trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Was it correct or incorrect to bid two clubs on the following hand:

Spades Q x x, hearts A x, diamond A, clubs A x, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1.

Answer: A. The hand contains 4-1-2 honor tricks and slightly less than four losers. Therefore, an opening two club bid is justified.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Olga Morosova.)

A Treatment for the Woman Who Complains of a Shiny Nose

By MIGNON.

There are so many women asking me what to do about an oily skin, especially around the nose and chin. Here is a treatment that I can recommend to you, having tried it out thoroughly on a very sensitive skin.

First clean the face, either with a mild soap and water, a cleansing cream or a liquid cleanser. It does not matter which you use, as long as it is the one you prefer.

Apply a light cream. A cleansing cream will do if your skin is very oily. It might as well give you the one that is made by the manufacturer who puts out the product I am going to recommend so highly, because it will save you trouble in shopping.

This cream has a water-lily scent which is extremely delicate. Rub this very gently over your face and then remove it with tissues.

Always keep a roll of absorbent cotton in your dressing-table drawer. Take a little pad of this and wet it with a liquid made by this same woman to correct shine and large pores. Be sure that you shake the bottle, because you will notice that there is a slight powder in the bottom of it.

After you have run the wet pad of cotton over your face apply a make-up foundation. There is one that matches these other products which is also a water-lily affair, of the consistency of a good, thick, runny cream. Dip your fingers in the jar and spread a light film of this over your face. I have found that this is a foundation preparation which will not dry your skin.

Now apply your cream rouge—if that is what you use—then your face powder, and, lastly, your lipstick. Brush the powder out of your eyebrows and eyelashes with a brush or a tiny piece of cotton wet with warm water, then—go places looking your best.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon at The Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name and address need not be given. Write Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I always agree with your advice to others and now I am asking you if you don't agree with me in a stand I have taken. My wife and I are the same age, 28. We have two precocious children, two and four. We have been happy together and have always seen things in the same light prior to the entrance of my mother-in-law into the picture. She has two living husbands, can't get on with either of them. The first is married and the second has deserted her. I moved her bag and baggage into our home, divided what I had with her and though I make a small salary I bought her clothes just as I bought my wife's clothes. She immediately began to run the show. There were hot arguments and I am ashamed to say I called her dirty names and she called me dirtier ones. I told my wife either her mother had to move, or I would. She wouldn't put her mother out, so I went out. Of course I am not happy separated from my family and it doesn't look like we are going to have a reunion anytime soon. I haven't the money to keep two establishments. Now what shall I do?

A. G.

Answer:

I am sorry to tell you if you haven't taken any stand. You have run away from taking a stand and until you go back and assert your rights as head of your household there isn't any possibility of your being happy. He who fights and runs away will live to fight another day, but if it happens to be a husband that has run away from home, he is necessarily a bit humiliated at having to go back.

Putting a mother-in-law out of the house is as difficult as ejecting a family that is behind on the rent. The law, in one case, and the sentiment of society in the other, make it easy for the trespasser. However, you will have to put out the mother-in-law or put her in her place. Having the money bag in your possession should simplify matters for you. For the whole crowd has to eat and it is up to you to make them eat out of your hand. With this thought clearly defined, march back to your family, have an understanding with your wife that you are ready to resume your place. She will be glad to have the meal ticket in hand once again and if you are careful you can bring her around to see the folly of permitting her mother throw the monkey wrench into the family works.

The silent treatment is much harder to take than hot words. If a woman can use her tongue to larrup her son-in-law she has upper hand. But she can't use her tongue if he doesn't give her provocation. Cold politeness will silence a woman more quickly than a cocked pistol. Any man that wants to get the best of a meddlesome mother-in-law should say and pay as little as possible.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I am one of the women married to a good man who can't get along in the world. He has a weakness for drink and when he is drinking he wastes his money. I want to go to work and make some money to help with the expenses but he won't listen to it. Please tell me how to convince him that this is wise.

WORRIED.

SEWER WORK RUSHED BY CITY DEPARTMENTS

Bond Commission Approves Measures; Bids Received on Disposal Equipment.

Atlanta's bond commission, the city purchasing department and the municipal construction department yesterday pooled their efforts in a drive to expedite work on the $8,000,000 sewer modernization program for the metropolitan area.

Ten council measures were approved by the bond commission, bids on clarifying tanks, sludge digesters, bar screens, grit removers and sludge pumps for the Clayton, South River and Utoy creek plants were opened by the purchasing committee and ordered tabulated in time for submission at Monday's council session, and a study of sediment collection methods also was ordered.

The bond commission, over which former Mayor Pro Tem. Claude L. Ashley presided in the absence of James H. Ewing, chairman, passed in several minor measures designed to perfect the city's organization and allocation of various funds. Those not already approved by council will go to that body Monday.

In addition, a group of measures were approved setting up funds for the purchase of various rights-of-way where agreements already have been reached and provision of funds to prosecute condemnation against parcels on which no agreement can be reached.

Chief William A. Hansell, in charge of sewers, announced that more than 2,000 men provided by WPA are now at work on various sections of the sewer system in the program to lay 54 miles of trunk line sewers within the next few months.

The bond commission passed resolutions expressing regret at the death of Dr. E. F. Fincher, eleventh ward member of the commission, and congratulated his successor Dr. Emmett Ward.

FINE BEER SELLER

Jury Finds Tavern Owner Sold Without License.

Atlanta's first case of selling beer without a state license resulted in a $50 fine for Jack Alexander yesterday in criminal court where he was found guilty by a jury.

Alexander, who formerly operated "The Wagon Wheel" on Roswell road at Piedmont road, paid the fine and Judge Jesse M. Wood suspended a six-month sentence.

Charges against Alexander were made by Grover Bell, deputy state revenue commissioner, who said Alexander sold beer for several months after he had been refused a permit by the county commission on July 3, 1935. Alexander contended the county police told him he could sell beer while his case was being decided by the commissioners, but it was testified he continued operating without license after his permit was refused.

Bell said the case was the first of hundreds which the state will prosecute under Georgia laws against those who do not purchase state licenses.

him that if he will agree to give up drinking and save his money, you will drop the idea of going to work, but if he persists in making you do without things you need in order to pay for entertainment, you intend to make up the deficit by finding a job. This is only fair and when he is sober he will see the fairness of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Loidans To Honor Alliance Francaise on Thursday

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loidans will entertain the Alliance Francaise at their home, 150 Fifteenth street, at 8:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Loidans, the speaker for the occasion, will discuss the present trend of dramatic art in France. Always an interested and alert student of French drama, he will give a running commentary on five of the most important plays he attended last fall in Paris: "Madame Quilès," by Jean Sarment; "Elisabeth, la Femme sans Homme," by André Joffet; "La Fin du Monde," by Sacha Guitry; "Elopol," by Bernstein; "La Guerre de Troie n'aura pas lieu," by Jean Giraudoux. The keen psychology and originality of the last named play is considered a brilliant event in French theatrical history. Following Mr. Loidans' talk, scenes from one of these five plays will be read by a group of alliance members under the direction of Mrs. Hal Davison.

Mrs. Joe Brown, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Kurt Mueller, will sing "Ritournelle," by Chaminade, and "J'ai tant de choses à vous dire," by Serrati. After the program will be a social hour of French conversation over the tea cups.

The French film, "Sans Famille," presented Saturday under the auspices of the Alliance Francaise at one of the local theaters, was a brilliant success.

Miss Luthie, Fiance Honored at Parties

Miss Reba Luthie and her fiance, Irving J. Roberts, whose marriage takes place on Saturday, are being entertained at a series of pre-nuptial parties.

Mrs. W. E. Durham will entertain the wedding party on Thursday at a dinner party on Thursday at their home on Euclid avenue, preceding the wedding rehearsal.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chesebrough honored Miss Luthie and Mr. Roberts at a dinner party on Thursday at their home on Linwood avenue. After dinner, slips of paper were drawn and one-minute speeches made on the subjects given. Bingo was played and prizes won by Miss Reba Luthie and Herman Lewis. Later an amateur hour was enjoyed.

Miss Mildred Sandow assisted in entertaining the guests, who were Miss Luthie, Mr. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Zoss Barrett, Misses Martha Brady, Agnes McGloom and Mildred Sandow, the Chesebroughs, Carl Stroud and Herman Lewis.

Mrs. L. O. Baldwin and Mrs. A. B. Jones complimented Miss Luthie with a luncheon on Saturday, the guests being Mrs. Carl Brannon, Mrs. Ed Johnson and Misses Sara Barnes, Ruth Fuller, Elizabeth Cowen, Hoke Banks and Bennie Ruth Digby.

Miss Weyman Is Complimented.

Miss Betsy Weyman, whose marriage to Alexander Yearley IV will be a brilliant event of February 3, was honored guest yesterday at the luncheon given by Mrs. Samuel D. Hewlett at her home on Peachtree road.

The luncheon table was centered with an Italian pottery bowl filled with acacia and white narcissi, and at each side of the central decoration was a smaller vase of similar flowers. Invited were Misses Carroll and Elizabeth Hopkins, Mrs. Tom Clarke, Harriet Grant, Mary Ann Carr, Barbara Ransom and Mary Russell Kirby.

On next Monday evening, James Calhoun and Linton Hopkins will be hosts at a steak fry complimenting Miss Weyman and her fiance. This event will take place at the country home of Perryman Little near Roswell.

Good morning! Weather today: Partly cloudy and slightly warmer. Probably rain or snow tonight.

Gladiolus Society Holds Meeting.

Members of the Georgia State Gladiolus Society met recently at the Garden Center, and adopted a constitution and by-laws, and the president, James A. Ford, appointed the following of the executive board to serve with officers, Winship Cole, Thomas F. Guffin, Professor J. H. Peacock and Mrs. W. R. Leach. Joseph Coleman, of Savannah and Florida, was voted an honorary member emeritus, for his nationally known work in developing gladioli with the American Gladiolus Society.

Mr. Ford gave a list of gladioli which included at least one shade of the rainbow and 17 varieties, from which the members will plant their gardens in order to promote a mammoth show in Atlanta in June. The varieties have been grown and shown at shows given by the American Gladiolus Society and are given in the order of their popularity, with their color: Pearly, salmon pink; minuet, lavender; Betty Nuthall, orange; Marmore, smoky; W. H. Phipps, salmon pink; Mother Macree, smoky; Helen Wills, pure white; Corby, light pink; Salbach, orchid, orchid pink; Charles Dickens, purple; Aida, dark violet; Ave Maria, light violet; Golden Dream, yellow; Dr. P. E. Bennett, scarlet; Commander Koehl, medium red; Morocco, dark red, and Fata Morgana, deep pink.

Interesting letters were read from members of the national society, giving encouragement to this newest chapter, and offering their assistance to the gentlemen, and we thought those interested in growing gladioli to become members of the state society, and any community may have a branch with a membership of not less than five.

BY FRANK MACMILLAN.

Associated Press Financial Writer.
NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(P)—Concentrated buying in a rather narrow selection of leaders in all groups pushed stock market prices into new high ground today.

The average, industrials, rails and utility shares, each edged up to new peaks.

Farm implement shares showed advances ranging around 2 to 3 points for the leaders, and there was active buying at moderately improved prices in the low-priced utilities, as well as selected rails and industrial specialties.

At the same time there were pivotal shares in all divisions which showed evidence of rallying. Over the list, as a whole, declines slightly outnumbered advances.

Trading was postponed an hour at the opening out of respect for the late King George, but even so, turnover in the stock exchange reached 2,202,500 shares. This was about the same hourly rate as in the previous session, when 3,117,285 shares changed hands.

A notable strengthening in U. S. government securities featured a new bond market, as some of the recent weakness over the possibility of new monetary plans at Washington was dissipated by official pronouncements.

Under the same influence, the dollar thrust forward in the foreign exchange market to score sharp gains over the French franc and other gold units, as well as the pound sterling.

Agricultural machinery shares attracted interest as Washington plans for new farm relief measures took shape. Case at 109 3/4, Deere at 60 1/2, International Harvester at 63 and Oliver at 31 5/8 each gained 2 to 3 points or more.

Commonwealth & Southern was in much demand at a fractional advance. The company reported 1935 earnings equal to $6.27 a share of preferred stock and 1 cent a common share.

In the previous year only $4.96 was earned on the preferred, but the new dividend was increased to $6.27.

Followers of the rails found encouragement in the continued favorable trend being shown by December net operating income figures.

Some of the issues which gained around 1 1/2 points included Allegheny, at 40 1/4, Santa Fe at 72 1/2, Bigelow-Sanford Carpet at 29 3/8, Chesapeake & Ohio at 57 1/8, Union Pacific at 121 and Nickel Plate at 26.

Earnings.

COMMONWEALTH & SOUTHERN.
NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(P)—Financial report of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, one of the largest railroads in the South, and its subsidiaries for the year ended December 31, 1935, showed consolidated net income of $6,270,000 after charges for depreciation, equal to $6.27 a share on 1,000,000 shares of $6.27 preferred stock.

After allowing for annual dividend requirements on the preferred, on which there were accumulations of $2.25 a share on October 1, 1935, the balance is equal to 1 cent a share on the common.

Five companies with net income of $7,445, 776, or $4.96 a share on the average number of preferred shares outstanding in 1934.

BY FRED WILLIAMS.

Associated Press Cotton Reporter.
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—(P)—Cotton prices eased from 2 to 6 points in a dull market today as the trade watched Washington for the next few days, which way the trading trend will turn.

Trading was postponed for the first hour, out of respect to the late King George, and when the market opened, prices showed a slight change from previous closing levels.

Active options held in a narrow range that never exceeded 50 cents a bale and finally closed up a few points from the lows but still under Monday's level.

March finished at 11.25, May at 11.03, July at 10.76 and October at 10.34, while in the spot market middling at New Orleans eased 6 points on sales of 845 bales to 11.60 cents a pound.

Most of the selling today was in the nature of long liquidation as the trade and speculative interests sold cotton, pending the uncertainty in Washington over the new crop and loan cotton.

Some selling by spot houses in the March position was reported, but most of the offerings were in the nature of liquidation.

Speculative interest took contracts on the point-to-point decline.

Port receipts 20,965; week 54,724; season 5,935,989; last season 5,753,765; 1935-36 season 5,935,989; last season 5,753,765; 1935-36 season 5,935,989; last season 5,753,765.

Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 99,157.

COTTON DEALS SLOW; WHEAT LOSSE GOOD

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(P)—After a comparatively quiet and steady morning, cotton broke under realising on liquidation during today's later trading. Many, after selling up from 11.04 to 11.11, closed at 11.03, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 7 to 10 points.

After showing net advances of about 1 to 5 points during the middle of the day, prices eased again.

Traders evidently failed to find immediate inspiration in the news from Washington and the disposition to await developments was probably increased by the absence of the Liverpool market, which naturally curtailed arbitrage operations.

Exports today 7,757, making a total of 4,078,797 for the season. Port receipts 20,965. United States port stocks 2,915,085.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(P)—A strong market for United States government bonds contrasted with mildly better performance in other divisions of the listed market today.

All of the active federal loans got off on the right foot at 11 o'clock, and the market for them was generally heavy sales the rest of the day. Gains ranged from 4-32ds in Treasury 4-1s of 1947 to 10-32ds in Home Owners' Loan Corp. majority ended in the higher brackets.

Prices in the corporate divisions underwent little change, and the foreign department boated only a fractional range.

Baltimore & Ohio 6s, Atlantic Coast Line 4-1-2s, Louisville & Nashville 4-1-2s, and Pere Marquette 6s and 7s were in demand. The 6s and 7s prices were paid for Santa Fe 4s. MONROE AGGIES, COMMERCIAL HI WIN PREP TILTS Leaders Defeat Marist, 32-20; Typists Beat Smithies, 25-17.

Monroe Aggies and Commercial High were winners Tuesday afternoon on the Y. W. C. A. court in the fifth round of the city prep basketball league. Monroe defeated Marist College, 32-20, to retain leadership of the league and also to increase its undefeated string to five games. Commercial beat Tech High 25 to 17.

Playing a great defensive game in the first half, Monroe held Marist without a field goal and rang up 22 points to lead, 22 to 5, at the intermission.

Several reserve players were sent into the game at the beginning of the second half and it was in the third quarter when Marist pulled up to within eight points of a tie score. The Cadets trailed, 24 to 16, and held Monroe to two points during the third period.

In the fourth period, Monroe put on another brief scoring spree and won out easily.

Hyder and Dillard, with 12 points each, were outstanding for the winners. The defensive play of Hyder was particularly good, while the guarding of Bates and Gaston was also good.

Reld and O'Kelley led the attack for Marist, with eight and six points, respectively.

Boys' High Upsets Watkinsville, 37-18.

WATKINSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 28.—Boys' High, of Atlanta, proved surprisingly strong here tonight and completely outclassed a formidable Watkinsville High team before a large crowd, 37-18. After a closely fought first half the visiting Purples turned on the heat to win going away.

The Red Raiders held a slight lead all the way and were on the long end of a 10-9 count at the half.

The offensive play in the second half was much better and the scoring on both teams was decidedly better.

Commercial divided its scoring with every player except Chasen getting at least three points.

Manning and Enlow were outstanding for Tech High and scored 13 of the 17 Smithie points.

Boys' High Defends Second Place.

Boys' High and Columbus Industrial will battle for second place in the prep basketball league at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the Henry Grady court.

Columbus holds second place at present with Boys' High in fourth place.

A victory today will give the Purples a tie with Columbus and Commercial High.

Russell Defeats North Fulton, 28-25.

Russell, weakened by illness of Poley and Brown, regulars, emerged winner in a bitterly fought game with North Fulton High at North Fulton yesterday afternoon, 28-24. North Fulton held an 18-8 lead at the half, but Russell was more effective after the intermission, with Almond leading a fine offensive spurt.

North Fulton Girls scored a 23-14 win over the Russell Lassies, controlling a 12-6 margin at the half.

BREAK O'DAY!

They are tearing down the old Wilmot hotel in our town. And that's news. To a lot of people.

If each old brick could tell its story before it comes tumbling down in dust, there would be lots of stories to hear.

And if each old room could say, "Hey, there, boy, wait a minute with that crowbar, wait until I've had my say"—there would be learned some secrets that never will be known and stories of tragedy, pathos and humor—any hotel has them. The Wilmot had its share.

In the old days it was the fight headquarters for Atlanta. The champions and the stumble bums stopped there. The wrestlers halted there. And chorus girls stayed there in the days when there were chorus girls.

Mike McTigue halted there. He and his manager, Paddy Mullins. Paddy Mullins used to sit there in his room and meditate.

Sometimes I think he was the smartest manager the game ever knew. He persuaded Battling Siki's managers to fight Mike McTigue in Dublin, Ireland, on ST. PATRICK'S DAY, with Siki holding the title. You may have an idea who held the title when day was done!

I always felt a bit sorry for the Singular Senegalese, as the boys called the black boy. He was never able to figure out things and he ended dead in an alley in the Hell's Kitchen section of New York, shot in the back.

A great many fights were made in the old Wilmot rooms. And it had its share of the hotel parties the town has had. The management was kind to newspapermen and any one of them three sheets in the wind could always drop anchor there and get a call in time to get back to work.

Pa Stribling used to take a suite there before the late W. L. was to show in Atlanta. It was entertainment headquarters.

Jack Britton, the welter champion, registered there. Pal Moore, the great little bantam, was a guest. Vince Dundee, Pal Moran, Sergeant Sammy Baker, Jack DeMave and a dozen others were to be seen there.

The hotel had its permanent guests, characters who seemed to belong right there.

With the decline of the fight game, the Wilmot ceased to be a headquarters. But in its day it used to hum a bit. And if those old bricks and stones could talk—!

SIKI-MCTIGUE. Mike McTigue participated in two curious fights, one in Columbus, Ga., out of which Joe Jacobs, who was helping handle him at the time, made much capital.

Joe Jacobs went away from these telling stories of the Ku Klux Klan which were all figments of his rather lively imagination. The hoodwinked hoodwinkers were active at the time, but they did not participate in the Stribling-McTigue fight in which the Georgia school-boy was called the loser, the winner and finally given a draw, all by one and the same referee.

But McTigue's winning of the championship remains the most improbable story of them all. Battling Siki and his entourage traveled from Paris to Dublin to fight a native-born Irishman on, of all days, St. Patrick's Day. A naive group, Siki and his handlers.

HE MAY BE THE BOXING CHAMP. Jimmy Braddock may be champion of the boxing business—I saw him win it.

But golf, ay, there is another story. Reports from Florida have it the heavyweight champion is just another dub at golf.

The swing that won the world's heavyweight title is getting drives from the tee of 50, 75 and 100 yards, more or less. And James finished up his 18-hole match just the other day with a snappy 175. Which reads like one of the qualifying scores in the newspaper golf tournament.

Golf, it was observed long ago, is an humbling game.

THE FORTUNES OF GOLF. There used to be—and still is—some fear among the baseball people that golf would hurt the game. It was figured out there were thousands of boys serving as caddies who would have been, a dozen years ago, out on the sandlots learning baseball. And that thousands of other boys were employing the caddies.

Those were the days when golf looked to be one of the royal roads to an easy and comfortable old age with an annuity paying in the money each month.

But I read in the P. G. A. report that the biggest money winner in the prize tournaments of 1935 was Johnny Revolta, who won $9,543. That's gross. Out of that he paid travel and eating expenses.

Henry Picard, Horton Smith, Ky Laffoon, Paul Runyan and another pro or so won at least $5,000.

They are the ranking players. What about the unsung dozens who were down in the ranks? Joe Kirkwood won $102. Roland MacKenzie, former amateur who turned pro last year, won $252.

And there were others who won nothing at all. The boys had best go back to the sandlots.

BASEBALL THE BEST BET. Baseball remains the best bet for a youngster with talent in that direction.

But the prize ring, of course, is the best of all for the one or two who reach the top in each decade. Joe Louis has earned almost $500,000 in less than two years, while Revolta, first in golf, picked up less than $10,000 for his year of competition.

But Johnny Revolta and other golfers have this consolation. They will not end up with their ears crumpled into cauliflower shapes, nor will they be punch drunk at 40.

Although, at that, Joe Louis hasn't been hit hard enough to dent his hide. But he will be—unless he retires. There comes a time when the old legs and arms won't flail as they once did.

The Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder defeated J. M. Lawrence, Chicago, 9 and 7, to gain the semi-final round. He played out the 18 holes in 78, seven over par.

GEORGIA CAGERS IN TIGHT TILTS THIS WEEK-END FOR BULLDOGS

Coach Enright's Team Faces Vols Friday and Jackets Saturday.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—Georgia's basketballers face their toughest weekend assignment of the season Friday and Saturday when they battle the Tennessee Vols and Tech's Yellow Jackets in successive games.

Coach Rex Enright in discussing the bill of fare would not choose which he thought was the hardest. "We will find the going steep in either game. It would be difficult choosing the most trying."

With Jack Furran's blister-ridden feet back in condition, the team should be strengthened. Experience gained in the games played thus far is already showing the Bulldogs in a better light. Against Florida in two games the Enright men showed a much better defense and a well-rounded offense.

The passing attack, the floor game, the goal shooting co-ordination, all told, are very much improved. Frank Johnson's eye for the goal has sharpened in the last few weeks.

Lee Richardson, Decatur forward, is among those showing most gratifying improvement. The blond sophomore is developing an uncanny touch for the basket on long-range shots. He is one of the most earnest of Coach Enright's workmen. It is not unusual for him to spend extra hours on his own accord trying to perfect his shots.

The team Tennessee will bring here Friday night is quite a contender, having beaten the Bulldogs in the first contest at Knoxville. They also hold a victory over the tall Alabama five. If Georgia wins over both Tennessee and Tech in Atlanta this week-end she will have five victories against three losses in the conference.

MEHRE SHIFTS THREE PLAYERS

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—Georgia's gridders skinned the surface of the novel offense plans today as Coach Mehre announced three new personnel changes. Sam McAllister, new line coach, was on hand and expressed satisfaction at the appearance of the squad.

Alterations involving Pete Tinsley Jr., Buddy Milner and Marvin Gillespie were made known. Instead of going from guard to fullback, Tinsley will be tested thoroughly at right halfback. Buddy Milner, who saw most action at center last fall, will work at right end. Marvin Gillespie, likely looking "Red Devil" halfback, will be given a try at end although he may wind up at fullback.

The following first team toyed with the new setup: Ott Maffett, Buddy Milner, ends; Bill Badgett and Tom Hargrave, guards; Walker Troutman and J. C. Hall, guards; Quenton Lumpkin, center; Andy Rothenberry, quarterback; Alf Anderson and Glenn Johnson, halfbacks; and Earl Hinton, fullback. Milner, who accompanied today's workout.

ORCUTT LEADS IN FIRST ROUND

PUNTA GORDA, Fla., Jan. 28.—(UP)—Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, brilliant Miami stylist, today led favorites through the first round of match play in the second annual lotte Harbor women's championship of golf club champions.

She eliminated Mrs. Mark McGarry, of St. Petersburg, the defending champion, 4 and 2.

While a strong wind sent the temperature plummeting downward, little Betty Berg, of Minneapolis; Lucille Robinson, of Des Moines; and Marjorie Miley, dark-haired trans-Mississippi champion from Lexington, Ky., also swept through their first matches.

Miss Robinson defeated Mrs. G. G. Blairdale, of Waterville, Maine, 4 and 2. Patty Berg disposed of Mrs. Al Nelson by default, and Miss Miley defeated Mrs. Lillian Zech, of Chicago, 3 and 1.

Louis, Bride Plan Hot Springs Trip

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—John Roxborough, co-manager of Joe Louis, challenger for the heavyweight championship, said today that the brown boxer and his bride were planning an immediate trip to Hot Springs, Ark., but that their honeymoon to Honolulu still is undecided.

"They haven't made up their minds," he said.

Louis plans to rest up in Hot Springs for several days.

Owner, Trainer Draw Life Ban

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Benjamin Davidson, Brighton (Mass.) race horse owner, and Thomas Hurley, New York trainer, were ruled off Florida tracks for life today by the state racing commission following hearing on charges of stimulating the horse, Payrack, by giving him a caffeine injection.

In ruling Davidson from Florida tracks the racing commission granted him permission to sell his horses. Payrack and Wayward Son, to a bona fide purchaser, the sale to be subject to approval by the commission.

Walter H. Donovan, commission secretary, said both the horse owner and his trainer verified previously made confessions of stimulating Payrack with caffeine January 11, when he won the third race at Tropical Park, and again last Friday at Hialeah, when the horse was withdrawn before the sixth race.

Another Appling on Way Up

Horace Appling, 20-year-old brother of Luke, star Chicago White Sox shortstop, has returned his signed contract to Dallas in the Texas league. Horace, a second baseman, will make his professional debut with the Steers. He spent last year with Luke at Chicago and worked out with the White Sox during the season. It was there that Bob Tarleton, business manager of the Steers, saw him and became interested in the young Appling. Horace was given a bonus for signing. Staff photo by George Cornett.
